Why Americans Win
Women Are Sensitive
What Do We Care?
Who Is Wheeler?

IN ENGLAND on Saturday, the pick of the British and American Olympic teams competed in track events. The meeting was a great success, Americans winning eleven out of fourteen events.

In the first event 400 yards relay, Americans celebrated by breaking the world's record. That's gratifying to national vanity, but what is the meaning of such a victory? Is it due to climate? There is no doubt that our climate is more stimulating, more "nervous" than that of England.

Is the overwhelming American victory due to the fact that ours is a more thoroughly MIXED race. That explains it partly.

But the real explanation is found in the fact that all Americans are descendants of Europeans and that they had the COURAGE, ENERGY and AMBITION to get out of Europe. Courage, energy and ambition are qualities handed by father and mother to son and daughter, and they are qualities that win races, wars and other things.

DR. CHARLES GRAY SHAWN, professor of philosophy, says women have more individuality and more morality than men "in spite of their bobbed hair, short sleeves, cigarettes, canes, etc."

Of course women are better, and always have been. That is why men have gradually changed from cave cannibals to flat dwellers. Woman, in her more reserved life and greater privacy, says Dr. Shawn, has developed personality more intense than that of man.

Women FEEL more intensely than men. They resent injustice, cruelly, undeserved suffering with an earnestness unknown to men and personality is only another name for INTENSITY OF FEELING.

HOW LITTLE we know or care about earth's distant places.

The Chu-Kiang has overflowed its banks. We GUESS that the Chu-Kiang is in China. Streets of the great city of Canton are flooded. If the dikes give way, there will be terrible loss of life.

The Si-Kiang, Tunga-kiang and Pela-kiang, which are the west, east and north rivers of that far off region, cause heavy floods. Villages are swept away.

IT all means as little to us as though we read that dikes had given way on the canals of Mars. We're a provincial human race as yet. Flying machines and a universal language will cure us of that in years to come.

WHEELER, running with La Follette, insists that he is still a Democrat, and so he is, if he chooses to be. Financial newspapers now solemnly read Wheeler out of the Democratic party and La Follette out of the Republican party, because they presume to run and vote independently.

Those Tory newspapers did not read the gold Democrats out of their party when they voted, talked and paid their good money to defeat the Democratic candidate, Bryan. Why?

WHEELER of Montana is an interesting American. The son of a village shoemaker, born at Hudson, Mass., youngest of eight children, he made his way at every step, and having worked to get ahead, fighting upward against the copper trust to the Senate, he helped other workers.

AS A LAWYER, after graduating from Michigan Law School, he undertook and won "forlorn hope" damage suits of injured miners against the employing companies that had the State in their grip.

"THE OLDEST woman's vanity case" has been found by Professor Zasser, Russian archeologist. In the tomb of a Greek woman, buried with tufts of false hair, silver bracelets, etc., he found a box with a rouge stick for the lips, and a charcoal pencil for eyebrows.

But 500 B.C. is not ancient, for such a find. Ten thousand years earlier women were smearing their faces with red clay and staining their front teeth black.

IT DOES SEEM that WOMEN have always been foolish.

LOEB AND LEOPOLD PLEAD GUILTY OF FRANKS MURDER

100 MARCH ON KLAN MEETING

Riot Call Ends Clash at Byfield; Millionaire Johnson Gets K. K. K. Threat

When 100 young men carrying baseball bats tried to jostle their way into a Ku Klux Klan meeting in Byfield Baseball Park klansmen turned in a riot call, and only the prompt arrival of special police and members of the State Patrol averted bloodshed.

Coincident with that development in the Klan situation came the announcement that a threatening letter signed K. K. K. had been received by George F. Johnson, millionaire shoe manufacturer, of Boston and Binghampton, N. Y.

Mr. Johnson had threatened to discharge any employe of the Endicott-Johnson Shoe Corporation found to belong to the Klan.

The letter said that by refusing to buy his products, the K. K. K. could crush his corporation in a year, and would.

There were 1,000 klansmen at the Byfield meeting. The hostile crowd that tried to take the meeting over is said to have been organized in the town of Groveland.

The park is fenced inside a thicket. It is rumored that Klan meetings have been held there before.

Waving baseball bats and brandishing other clubs picked up in the woods on the march to the meeting, the invaders made a formidable picture when they approached the four white-robed klansmen who comprised the outer guard.

They demanded admission and it was denied. They were told the Klan had a permit to use the park for the afternoon and desired no intrusion.

"We're going in anyway," they said, and advanced threateningly toward the main gate.

Feeling was at white heat when some of the older klansmen dispatched runners to round up special policemen in the vicinity. A few minutes later the State Patrol arrived and helped block the advances of the Klan foes.

INVADERS WITHDRAW.

Corporal McFarland was in command of the special police and did much to avert bloodshed.

Afterward talking, wheedling, threatening and showing, he prevailed upon the invaders to withdraw peaceably.

Inside the park were K. K. K. members from Newbury, Ipswich, Duchardt, who was the protege of Bacon, played one of the leads in "The Goose Hangs High," which recently closed in New York.

7 Springfield Safes Cracked; Loss May Be $10,000

Springfield, July 21.—Seven safes were "cracked" here during the week-end, with a known theft of $1,000 and a possible theft of $10,000 more. The burglars removed the dials from six safes, which were locked when the breaks were discovered today. A safe expert was called from Boston to open these to determine whether the burglars took the contents. No finger prints or other evidence was left.

The Mentor Company of No. 332 Main street, lost $1,000. The other concerns whose safes were tampered with are N. Sallinger, No. 523 Main street; Mohican Market, Plapper Shop and Massachusetts Baking Company of Bridge street and two in Levison & Co. store, Main street.

ALIMONY OFFERED TO MAN BY JUDGE

Chicago, July 21.—"In this day and age, women who assume the rights and prerogatives of men should assume their responsibilities."

So said Judge David in offering William C. Meckling part of his wife's fortune, when the husband appeared for a divorce on grounds of desertion.

"How much alimony and counsel fees do you want," the Court asked. Meckling blushingly denied he wanted any.

"Well, I can't force it on you," said the Judge, "but if you want it I'll give it to you."

His wife abandoned him, Meckling charged, after her father, R. E. Allison, New York hotel manager, became wealthy.

WALTER DUCHARDT, "LIGHTNING", IS DEAD

NANTASKET FIRE ROUTS PATIENTS

Sturgis Hospital Endangered as Express Building Is Destroyed

Patients in the Sturgis Hospital on Nantasket avenue in Allerton were ordered to arise and dress and be prepared to flee the building today when it was threatened by a fire across the street.

The fire was in a two-story wooden building occupied by the Hull, Nantasket & Allerton Express Company.

The building was destroyed, the loss being estimated at $15,000.

Mrs. Annie Sturgis, wife of Dr. Walter Sturgis, who conducts the hospital, discovered the blaze. She telephoned to fire headquarters and a general alarm was given a few minutes later.

FOUR AUTOS BURNED.

The fire started in the delivery room in the rear of the building and worked its way to the roof.

Four automobiles, the property of the express company, were burned. Also was a quantity of food consigned to Summer residents along the Nantasket Beach, which was to have been delivered today.

Fanned by a light wind, the flames spread to Groves' Garage and Miller's Repair Shop, and did some damage there before they were extinguished.

PATIENTS AROUSED.

There was no panic in the hospital. Under the direction of Dr. Sturgis the patients were marshalled in the reception hall, fully dressed, and with their more important luggage packed.

A stream was played on the hospital until the danger was over. Then the patients went back to bed.

It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin and an investigation will be ordered.

"FOLIES A DEUX"—OR HANG?

RICHARD A. LOEB AND NATHAN LEOPOLD, JR.

Although it had been announced that the families of these two boys would not put up a fight to save them from the gallows for the atrocious murder of Robert Franks, today their lawyer, none other than the brainy Clarence Darrow, puts up a most unusual fight to have them declared insane. (International News Reel Photo.)

REALTY MAN IS BLACKJACKED

When John C. Timini arrived at his real estate office, No. 599 Shawmut avenue, Roxbury, today, he found men waiting on the doorstep.

"Aha," said Mr. Timini, "business is looking up. They're standing in line. Gentlemen, step in."

A few moments later, while he was becoming eloquent on the subject of a piece of property in Dorchester, one of the customers pulled an ugly looking automatic from his pocket.

"Personal property is what we are interested in, not real estate," he said.

The real estate man, who used to be an athlete, leaped upon the bandit. The latter's partner leaped upon Timini.

In what they used to call the olden days, Timini was hit on the head with a blackjack and did a gentle fadeout. When he regained consciousness he called up the police of the Roxbury Crossing station.

Some time later a man who said he was John Fitzpatrick, twenty-four years old, of No. Andrew street, Roxbury, was picked up on suspicion.

Timini identified him as one of the two early morning callers, and he was locked up charged with attempted robbery.

Nothing was missing from the real estate man's office when he regained his senses. Search for the second man is being made by the police.

2 BABIES FOUND ABANDONED

The police of Greater Boston are today searching for two mothers who abandoned their babies during the past twenty-four hours, one at a railroad station and the other in a church.

A well groomed baby boy about a week old was found in a comfortable position in the last pew, extreme corner seat of St. Clement's Church, South Medford. Patrolman George Cavanaugh of the Medford police, who had gone to the church with his two daughters, was interrupted in his devotions by the baby voice.

The officer picked the baby up and reported the finding of the youngster to Rev. James E. O'Donnell. A search was made throughout the church for the mother, but no one could be found. The baby was well dressed and around the baby's neck hung a Catholic religious emblem. Investigation failed to provide the identity of the week-old youngster. He was taken to the by several men who were loitering outside. She was very attractively dressed and the red sedan was parked on South street, a two-minute walk from the station. The body of the infant was found by a station employe.

Lawrence Memorial Hospital in Medford.

The second baby was a newly born infant, who was left in the women's room of the Hingham railroad station, after the alleged mother fled from the station in a costly red sedan.

The police were notified and Medical Examiner Peirson and Dr. John Sweeney, both of Hingham, pronounced the child dead. Physicians in every city and town in the State have been requested to notify the police in case any young woman applies to them for treatment. The girl was sent to enter the station

COFFEE SCALDS BABY TO DEATH

Francis McLaughlin, ten months old, of No. 14 Elliot square, Roxbury, while lying in a basket, reached his hand and seized an electric cord attached to a coffee percolator on the table and pulled the percolator off.

The scalding contents poured over his tiny body and he died at the City Hospital.

FIRPO DETAINED AS HE ARRIVES

New York, July 21.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight boxer, and his party were detained aboard the liner American Legian today by immigration authorities, who questioned them for some time after the steamer docked. The authorities declined to state the reason for the detention. They also questioned a woman named Blanco Lourdes, a friend of Firpo, who had a stateroom adjoining the fighter's. She said she was on route to Cuba.

MAN'S BODY FOUND HANGING FROM TREE

The body of an unidentified man was found suspended from a tree on the estate of Albert H. Fales, off Neponset street, Norwood, by Emory Forrest. He is believed to be a suicide.

In the opinion of Assistant Medical Examiner Arthur S. Hartwell of Norwood the body had been hanging five or six weeks.

Ludington, Mich., July 21 (Universal).—William Warner was arrested on complaint of his mother-in-law who charged Warner with beating his wife.

Warner told the police that he was trying to amuse his brother, who was spending his Summer vacation with him.

SLAYERS ARE FACING GALLOWS

Change Their Plea Despite Fact That it Carries Death Penalty

(LATEST.)

Chicago, July 21.—Defence counsel, at the opening of the trial today of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb for the murder of Robert Franks, moved to withdraw the plea of not guilty and substitute a plea of guilty.

After advising defence counsel that the plea of guilty made possible the "extreme penalty," of which the defence attorney signified cognizance, Chief Justice John R. Caverly allowed the plea to be entered.

Chicago, July 21 (I.N.S.).—With prosecution counsel said an expertant nation awaiting the attack of the counsel for the defence, the cases of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of Robert Franks, were called today when the preliminary motions for the trial, August 4 were argued in criminal court.

An army of policemen and deputy sheriffs stood guard at be Court House entrance to repel the thousands of curious.

The surprise attack of Clarence Darrow, chief of defence counsel, may change the entire outlook of the case.

THOUSANDS FLOCK TO LEGAL BATTLE OVER LEOPOLD AND LOEB

SLAYERS OF FRANKS BOY IN COURT AT CHICAGO

Side Hotel. States Attorney Robert C. Crowe presided.

Among those who attended was Thomas Marshall, the State's indictment expert. His presence led to a report that Darrow planned a defense attack on the indictments, charging kidnaping for ransom and murder, which had been returned against the youthful millionaire slayers. The allegation, it was definitely learned, presented a plea to offset the possible complementary insanity—"life or death"—which is to be expected will be offered by the defense.

PLEAS OF DARROW.

It was conceded the defense would not seek a change of venue, either on grounds that the crime was committed over the Indiana State line, or that feeling was too high in Cook County to permit a fair trial.

Among the motions Darrow may enter are:

A plea for the appointment of a special insanity commission to conduct the investigation.

A plea for separate trials for the boys.

A plea for a continuance after August 4, which would make the date of the trial September 1.

A plea to exclude certain evidence obtained by the State, notably the boy's confession.

A plea for an immediate trial.

If the trial is postponed for a month Chief Justice Caverly will not be on the bench. Cases tried before him are seldom reversed and remanded for another trial when the Supreme Court reviews them. Judge Caverly knows just what evidence to admit and what to exclude. His term of office in which justice will end September 1. Judge Jacob [illegible] will then become chief justice.

IS AROUSED.

Chicago them is still great feeling over this case, and a demand that the defendants stand trial on the processes of the law.

In some quarters there is it is a tendency to discourage this feeling, and much talk of "legal lynching bees."

The shocking details of the crime, one of the most sensational in history, began unfolding on the afternoon of May 21 last, when a workman, crossing an obscure road on the outskirts of Chicago's South side, found the body of Robert Franks, thirteen-year-old schoolboy, plunged into a muddy culvert.

Disappearance of the boy had become known, but his parents, having received a letter demanding $10,000 ransom, with full instructions as to how it should be delivered, declined to believe the body that of their son, and it was not until late in the afternoon that it finally became known that Robert Franks had been brutally slain.

PROFESSORS QUIZZED.

The sensation the discovery of the body caused was heightened when two professors at the Harvard School for Boys, an exclusive Chicago institution, where Robert Franks was a pupil, were taken into custody within a short time and subjected to the most rigorous questioning, during which they steadfastly maintained utter ignorance of the boy's movements the afternoon he disappeared.

Authorities have agreed that only by the fact that Dr. Nathan Leopold's haste to deposit the body of young Franks and return to the rented automobile which was used to convey it, he dropped a pair of horn-rimmed glasses the crime probably would have entered the list of unsolved mysteries.

Tiny spectacles were traced to the shop from which they were sold, and the buyer was identified by clerks in the optical firm as Dr. Nathan F. Leopold, Jr.

On May 29 Leopold was taken into custody on the strength of this fact. Richard Loeb was arrested quite by accident. He was known to have been an intimate of Leopold's, and police wanted to know what he could tell of Leopold's movements.

BOYS WERE CALM.

Stoical, smiling, intelligent, both Loeb and Leopold amazed their questioners with the extent of their knowledge. Their ready replies to questions and the accurate dovetailing of their statements had almost freed them until the alibi was reached. Then the super-intellects with which the boys have been credited reached the cracking point.

They had denied that the glasses found near young Franks' body belonged to Leopold. The youth admitted he had worn such a pair, but insisted they were as his home and he had abandoned their use.

They denied that either of them owned a portable typewriter of the kind used by the kidnaper when he wrote Jason Franks and signed his name as "George Johnson," in demanding $10,000 ransom.

They said that on the afternoon in question they had been riding in one of the Leopold automobiles. Later leaving them, and then driving to the Leopold home, because Dicky Loeb was the worse for wear as the result of too much gin.

ALIBI WEAKENS.

And then the fabric began to crack. Sven Englund, chauffeur for the Leopold family, read these statements in the newspaper delivered at the Leopold home and went immediately to the office of States Attorney Crowe, where he reluctantly told officers that Leopold was not telling the truth.

"The car he said he used was in the garage and undergoing repairs on the afternoon of May 21," he said.

Confronted with this statement, Richard Loeb, picked by questioners as the weaker of the two, leaned to his feet. His face turned pale and he was tense as he shouted:

"Did the — say that?"

Then, with a little more questioning, the words came tumbling from the frightened youth. He confessed the plot which, starting in the mind of Leopold nine months previous, finally had its culmination in the brutal killing of little Robert Franks.

Leopold, after holding out a short time longer, also capitulated and confessed.

The supreme calm with which the youths had faced their questioners through the grilling investigation returned to them after the first shock of discovery, and they gladly, even eagerly, accompanied police on tours about the city to gather in the links of the chain with which they were to be bound.

The detailed confession started with the first discussion by the youths of its commission. Leopold was charged by Loeb with having fathered the idea, and Leopold agreed.

They said they did not have their Franks in mind when the idea was presented. He merely lapsed on along, after full plans had been made for execution of the deed, and was the victim.

SOLDIERS AIDED IN MURDER OF U. S. CONSUL

Imbrie Slashed on Head With Sabre; Police Refused to Defend Americans

London, July 21 (I. N. S.).—Major Homer Imbrie, American vice-consul at Teheran, who was murdered Friday, was beaten to death by mobs while Persian soldiers and soldiers stood on, according to dispatches today from Teheran.

An autopsy showed a sabre cut on his scalp, the dispatches said, adding that only the Persian military police carried sabres. After Imbrie and his companion, Seymour, another American, had been taken to the hospital the mob followed, broke down the doors of the hospital and swarmed in again to attack the Americans, according to today's dispatches from Teheran.

It appears that many soldiers and police were present when Imbrie was attacked and that they did not interfere, the reports Teheran stated.

"It is also alleged the soldiers and police participated in the attack.

The Imbrie actually responsible for Imbrie's death, according to Teheran reports, were those inflicted while he was helpless in the hospital.

Imbrie and Seymour were driving in a carriage near the Cossack barracks when attacked, but beat off their assailants with sticks and fled in the carriage. A motor cyclist stopped the carriage and then a number of soldiers caught up with the carriage.

Imbrie was struck down with a bullet, it is said, and when he attempted to arise a huge rock struck him and felled him, breaking his jaw.

Baby Today, You Have Hope of Living Longer Then Dad

New York, July 20.—Americans born within the last ten years have much greater possibility of living their full span of years than the older members of their families or communities. Eighteen years have been added to the national life expectation rate, says Dr. Louis I. Dublin, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

In two generations the average duration of life has been increased from 40 years to 58 years. The death rate for 1921 was the lowest ever known in the United States and the expectation of life was the highest.

The average woman has a chance of living longer than the average man statisticians find.

but that MEN, heaven knows why, have foolishly preferred women with something artificial about them. It is hard to understand, but of course there is divine wisdom back of it. Vanity is one of the wiles that have fooled men ahead, and woman, with her changing fashions, is accomplishing some important work in psychic evolutions, although we don't know what it is.

NATIONAL OFFICERS and general chairmen representing the members of the Railroad Shopmen's unions declare for La Follette at a meeting in Detroit. That is one group that McAdoo would have had. Railroad men would have been with him at least 95 percent.

DR. BAEKELAND, president of the American Chemical Society, says chemistry is at war against WASTE, DISEASE, POVERTY, NARROWNESS. That is a big fight, but the statement is no exaggeration. At the beginning of this century chemists themselves believed that they knew about all there was to know in chemistry. They know today that more has been learned in the last twenty-four years than in the preceding 100 years and that knowledge is just beginning.

WHAT CHEMIST, physicist, or common, uneducated person will give to the world a powerful electric battery light in weight? There is a chance to earn hundreds of millions and solve the greatest power problem.

That electricity, weighing nothing in itself, should be stowed for use only in containers of preposterous weight is a reflection on the nation's inventive genius.

FRANCE'S unfavorable trade balance of half a billion francs was changed last year into a balance of two and a half billions in her favor. French exports last year totalled more than two billion francs. Look at the size of France on your world map and you will realize what a marvelous people the French are, with their power to manufacture, produce and SAVE.

If there were any way of freeing France from her fears of attack, enabling her to save billions now spent for militarism, what wonders she would achieve.

ONE DAY Europe will be a union of states in friendly competition such as we have here instead of being an armed camp of war and hatred. But that cannot come in this or the next generation.

The only thing that might hurry it would be another and worse war with one nation and one man of the Mussolini type coming out ahead and forcing the others to go to work, instead of going to war. But that could not LAST.

Intelligence from within, not power from without, must solve national problems.

Two Committees to Assist in Raising Fund for the La Follette Campaign

Washington, July 21.—Organization of two committees which will play a vital part in the coming Presidential campaign is engaging the attention of those who are directing the La Follette-Wheeler candidacies. One committee, to be composed of eleven members, will have general charge of the campaign, while the other will handle finances.

The campaign committee will have Representative John M. Nelson, of Wisconsin, as its chairman, with headquarters in Chicago.

Five members will be selected by Senators La Follette and Wheeler and the other will represent the Conference for Progressive Political Action, which endorsed the candidacies of both.

The finance committee will be made up of two sections—one representing the La Follette and Wheeler the other the conference.

Indications are that Attorney General Ekern, of Wisconsin, will head the one section, and that Alexander Kahn and Henry Rosenfelt, of New York, will be in charge of the other.

Various methods of raising funds, among them a proposal to call on organized workers to contribute part or all of a day's pay are under consideration, but a definite program has not been worked out.

Those in charge of the campaign are of the opinion that at least $2,000,000 are needed.

LOVE FOR SIX MONTHS WORTH $50,000 ANNUITY, SAYS MODISTE

WIFE OF A.&P. HEAD ASKS SUM

Mrs. Hartford Met Millionaire in Boudoir of No. 1; Wed After Divorce

New York, July 20.—Is any woman entitled to $50,000 a year alimony, no matter what may have been the cause of the shattering of her home?

Should any husband be required to pay so large an amount to a woman he no longer cares for, despite the old tradition that among the elements composing our scheme of existence none is more priceless than a woman's love?

These are questions which will be brought into the Supreme Court for judicial determination, when the secret romance of Mrs. Frances Beiger, Hartford, pretty, charming and a former modiste, will be bared in her suit for a separation from John A. Hartford, the multimillionaire president of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company.

HALF-YEAR ROMANCE

It was a brief romance, Mrs. Hartford revealed in the filing of the suit—attaining a climax with a secret marriage on June 28, 1923, and a honeymoon in a Long Beach bungalow, and ending on December 27, six months later. Then, according to her allegations, her unappreciative husband deserted her without cause and went to live at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel alone.

And he was so solicitous and attentive prior to the marriage, even five years before it, according to the auburn-haired modiste, who now claims he flirted with her over his first wife's shoulder in the latter's boudoir whenever she called with the latest modes from Paris.

WEDDED THE MODISTE

All of which finally led Madame to give her husband his freedom and the opportunity to make Mademoiselle Modiste the second Madame Hartford, though not even his most intimate friends were aware of the marriage until the recent filing of the suit.

However, the main point now in the situation is that the present wife of the chain store king feels that she is entitled to alimony of at least $50,000 a year and $10,000 counsel fees.

And she isn't a bit backward about asking for it, reciting that her husband has an income of $250,000 a year and, that he should pay at least half that amount during the six months of their married life.

At all events, the appraisal to be given by the judges as to the value of six month's affections given by the erstwhile gown saleswoman is sure to produce some knotty and interesting points.

GIRL'S LETTER KEEPS FATHER IN U. S.

Sabatini Held Up by Literacy Test, but His Daughter's Missive Frees Him

Westerly, R. I., July 21.—Rosa Lombardo is only seventeen and the daughter of an immigrant who never rose above the ranks of common labor, but she was born in America and the spirit of '76 is in her.

When Sabatini, her father, returned from Italy, the immigration authorities barred him because he could not read the forty words required in the literacy test.

Lawyers tried to secure his release and gave up in despair.

Consuls and vice-consuls and clever heads of Italian-American societies interested themselves without avail. Their logic and eloquence could not move the men in Washington.

So Rosa tried her hand. She wrote the following letter to the Secretary of Labor: "My father came to America before I was born. He was a literacy test and he was reason for coming was that no children might get their educational advantages he followed in Italy.

"If we always been nice father's pride but, as a common laborer, he helped build the schoolhouse at Westerly, in which we study. Almost everybody including Rita owns have two might to read.

Believed to Have Eaten Vegetables Sprinkled With Insecticide

Two hired men on the farm were also poisoned, but their condition is not serious.

The father was able to leave the hospital. Mrs. Parsons is convalescing, but the two little girls are not out of danger.

Physicians have sent samples of the food to the State laboratory for analysis with the theory that the fresh vegetables eaten on the farm may have been sprayed with poison.

WHEELER WILL OPEN CAMPAIGN IN BOSTON

La Follette and Associates Agree to Back Senator David I. Walsh

Washington, July 21 (Universal)—The first gun in the presidential campaign of the Independent Progressive Party will be fired in Boston, by Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, the vice presidential candidate.

That was agreed upon at a conference of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, candidate for President on the independent ticket, his manager, Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, and Senator Wheeler.

Plans were worked out to set up an organization in practically every State in the Union.

Senator Wheeler said volunteer workers would be used in the States to secure the necessary signatures and to meet with the other requirements. He declared thousands of persons in all walks of life, in the various States, were clamoring for a chance to help elect the Progressive ticket.

It was definitely decided to throw the Progressive influence back of the candidacies of Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana. Walsh of Montana won the support of the Progressives largely through his work in unearthing the oil scandals, while Walsh of Massachusetts has shown a Progressive tendency throughout his career, it was stated.

Crooker Starts Row Over La Follette in Bay State

A row has developed over who will manage the La Follette Presidential campaign in Massachusetts.

Conrad Crooker of Boston, a leader in the Liberal Republican League of 1912, took out a set of nomination papers at the office of the Secretary of State and is now in Washington to consult Senator La Follette.

Following shortly on Crooker's heels, a representative of "The Committee of Forty-eight" applied for a set of papers for La Follette, but was told it was inadvisable to issue more than one set, for the same candidate. He declared the "Committee of Forty-eight" would meet and repudiate Crooker.

Right Royal Welcome Awaits Vanderbilt, Coming to Beverly Farms This Week

(Staff Photo)

NATHANIEL SIMPKINS, HENRY G. THORNDIKE AND JOHN M. HALL

Among the future blades of society who helped to enliven things at the annual fair of St. John's Church, Beverly Farms, were Nathaniel S. Simpkins, son of Mrs. Nathaniel Simpkins, Jr.; Henry G. Thorndike, son of John R. Thorndike, and John M. Hall, son of the John L. Halls, all of Manchester.

By BETTY ALDEN

WHENEVER Harold Vanderbilt arrives on his North Shore, there's always a right royal welcome awaiting him there.

Mr. Vanderbilt, who's more commonly known as "Mike," to his intimates, has the reputation of being a thorough good sport. Though especially keen about yachting—he's one of the country's best-known yachtsmen—he is a follower of all the sports which interest the Shore folk.

This season Mr. Vanderbilt is arriving on the Shore somewhat earlier than usual—this week, in fact. Formerly he has not arrived until August 1. "Round Plain Farm," the Beverly Farms estate of Mrs. John Caswell, which he occupies for about two months.

The Vagrant, Mr. Vanderbilt's famous craft, has been the scene of many jolly parties during the owner's sojourn on the North Shore, and this season there will doubtless be other enjoyable affairs on board ship.

During Mr. Vanderbilt's stay at "Round Plain Farm" Mrs. Caswell will visit various resorts, spending some time in Long Island with her son, John Caswell, Jr.

Mrs. Caswell's very lovely daughter, Mrs. John Mitchell ("Sister" Caswell), after a short visit with her mother at the Farms, is spending the remainder of the season in Manchester at "Glendyne," the estate of her parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mitchell.

Mrs. L. Cushing Goodhue

Young Mr. Mitchell will arrive shortly at "Glendyne." At present he is in Cuba, where he has a large plantation, and whither he took his bride following their brilliant wedding at the Farms last September.

Of the smart group interested in the success of the annual fair held last week on the parish house grounds of St. John's Church at Beverly Farms was Mrs. L. Cushing Goodhue.

Formerly Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue and their young family have spent the warm season at Nahant, but this season they are at "Brooks House," on the Fabyan estate at the Farms.

Even a sudden and rather terrific shower failed to dampen the enthusiam with which those in charge carried out the fair. The latter is an annual event which never fails to gain the keenest support of members of the Summer colony at the Farms. Among those helping at the fair were Mrs. Charles C. Walker, Miss Polly Poor, Mrs. Lloyd Nichols, Mrs. Marshall Fabyan and Mrs. Henry L. Mason.

EX-BOXER SAVES DROWNING YOUTH

Anthony J. Flaherty, Boston College boxer, known to the ring as "Jack Dillon," who gave up his fistic career this summer to study for the priesthood, rescued Clarence Allen, sixteen, a sophomore of Woburn High School, from drowning at Foley's Pond, Woburn.

PHILADELPHIA POLICE HEAD TO GO

Philadelphia, July 21.—General Smedley D. Butler will cease activities as head of the city police sometime this week, Mayor Kendrick, under pressure applied by various political leaders, will withdraw his support from the man whom he appointed to "clean up" Philadelphia, and lacking the backing of the chief magistrate, the general will be forced to resign his office.

This final action has been brought about by General Butler's refusal to discontinue his embarrassing of the Philadelphia police stations, the only system whereby political control of the police can be effectually killed. Increasing pressure has been brought to bear on General Butler to let up on the embarrassing, but he has steadfastly refused to listen to what the Mayor and the politicians call "reason."

It also has been learned just what excuses the Mayor will use to get rid of the man he brought here to clean up Philadelphia, and who has done it. The Mayor is going to accuse the general of altering his reports to the Secretary, admonition for failing his political friends and members of city council, and of going to the newspapers with his troubles instead of to the Mayor.

Butler will be accused of being "not in harmony" with the administration. He will be told point blank that unless he decides to "resign for reason" he will be asked to resign, but that if he "goes along" there will be kind enough to let him serve until January 5, when his leave from the marine corps expires. Under no consideration will he be allowed to stay after January 5, it was learned.

TIRPITZ SCORES DAWES PLAN AS 'DEATH TRAP'

Berlin, July 21 (Copyright, 1924, by International News Service)—"The Dawes plan as it now stands seems with death traps for us."

Admiral von Tirpitz, leader of the Reichstag opposition and potential chancellor if the present government falls, made this statement today to International News Service in an exclusive signed interview.

"America did not sign the Versailles treaty, yet sponsors this document which greatly extends our obligations over that of the Versailles document," continued the Admiral.

"SWORD AT HEART"

"While our signature at Versailles was obtained by putting a pistol at our heads, the acceptance and exception of the Dawes plan would be worse. It would press the sword against our hearts.

"I am amazed that the Americans who so clearly saw the danger in the hidden article 10 in the League of Nations covenant have not yet discovered the danger concealed in the Dawes document.

"The operation of the Dawes report will automatically diminish our ability to purchase from America. It will affect the cotton and grain trades, as well as many of your large industries, even shipping and transportation.

WOULD LEAVE IT TO U. S.

"What solution can you suggest in place of the Dawes report?" Admiral von Tirpitz was asked.

"I think the reparations problem would be far more practical if it were left to an impartial committee of your American Senators," replied the Admiral.

"I, for one, would place my trust in such a committee. I am sure your senators would not try such insane schemes—separating the economic and political questions involved."

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Boston for week ending Saturday, July 19th, on shipments sold out, ranged from 9.50 cents to 16.75 cents per pound and averaged 15.12 cents per pound.—Advt.

MYSTERIOUS HAND HALTS WEDDING OF MISS ASTOR TO PRINCE

OPPOSED BY HER BROTHER

Vincent Bitterly Objects to Muriel's Betrothal to Russian "Rounder"

London, July 21.—For once the wedding of a decrepit foreign title to an American heiress has been stopped before it started.

The campaign of Prince Obolensky Neledinsky Meletzky, son-in-law of a former Czar of Russia, for the hand of Alice Muriel Astor, has been halted at the very door of the Russian Church in Buckingham Palace Road.

American society folk in London are jubilant.

Only two weeks ago announcement of the engagement of the couple created a furore in society circles here and on the continent, for the Prince, for all his melodious name and titles, is said to be regarded in London as "someone not to think about, or even mention." His various affairs, it is declared, have shocked the most lavishly.

Possibly the person least enthusiastic over the announcement of the coming marriage was Vincent Astor, brother of the heiress to $5,000,000, and himself the proprietor of a $15,000,000 estate left him by his father, the late Col. John Jacob Astor.

From the announcement of the engagement the young multi-millionaire is understood to have opposed the match bitterly. Society had, however, received word that the nuptials would be solemnized and the report sent reporters hurrying to the church. They were informed the wedding would not take place until Thursday. From Lady Ribblesdale, Alice's mother and formerly Mrs. Astor, came the word that no date had been decided on.

Friends of the family remained convinced that the wedding was planned for this week, and that some strong, mysterious hand had stayed the ceremony. Young Vincent Astor's opposition was believed in some circles, to have been the agency responsible.

CONFESSION OF MURDER MADE AND DENIED

Jersey City Prisoner Said He Killed McDonnell Boy; Then Retracts

New York, July 21.—Milton Ware, arrested in Newark on a charge of "rabbit" on a young boy there, is said by the police to have confessed to the murder of Francis McDonnell, eight-year-old son of a Staten Island policeman whose body was found in a lonely spot near Fort Richmond last Tuesday. He later repudiated the reported confession.

Ware is said to have nervously confided to Jailor James Dowd: "I killed a boy named McConnell or McDonnell on Staten Island."

Questioned by Dowd, Ware is said by the police to have declared:

"It is too terrible to tell about; too terrible to think about."

When questioned by detectives who hurried to Newark from Staten Island on receipt of the alleged confession, Ware denied having confessed and denied any knowledge of the crime. A grilling of the hands of the two detectives is said to have brought out an acknowledgment of the confession, but a denial of its truth. Ware then told the police that he had read concerning the McDonnell murder.

7 LOST CANOE TOTS BELIEVED KIDNAPED

Shrill Cries Were Heard in Woods on Night They Disappeared

Bridgeport, July 21.—With the fifth day since the disappearance of seven youngest children in the canal boat fleet that they had rented without permission, and no trace of them being found, excepting the canoe, which was discovered drifting off the Middle Ground lighthouse, about twelve miles from their starting point, a renewed investigation is being made into a theory advanced on the first night of their absence, when three residents in the vicinity of Ash Creek, from the mouth of which the children set out, heard shrill cries coming from the woods in the direction of Pond Point, where an abandoned house is located.

Search is being made for an unknown stranger who is known to have made his home in the woods for a few days previous to the disappearance of the children.

In the absence of further evidence of the drowning or the possible rescue of the children on the water, authorities are now giving more attention to the theory that the children might have been kidnaped. While this report was at first published, it is now being thoroughly denied, so that no trail may be left uncovered.

A copy of the Bridgeport Telegram of last Thursday's date has been found in the abandoned house, proving that some one has occupied the cabin. One room of the shack is furnished and the whole of it was in such disorder that it appears as if there had been a struggle.

Those who are reported to have heard the cries for help tell of the same incident to have happened between 11 and 12 Thursday night, but none dared to approach the place at the time.

The State police were notified but they are careful about making any disclosure, saying only that the place has been used as a living quarters for some time by a stranger, who is being sought.

Directoire Gowns Resuming Vogue in Germany

By O. D. TOLISCHUS

Berlin, July 21 (Universal cable).—The directoire fashion is coming back in Germany. The short, tube-like dresses are giving way to long gowns with an excess of "shape."

With these go small pointed hats. Formerly with the directoire fashions wigs were popular, enabling the lady to change the color of her hair several times a day. Already behind the scenes in barber and beauty shops attempts are being made to reintroduce wigs.

The end of the bobbed hair fashion is seen because women are cutting their hair shorter and shorter, so a reaction is believed at hand.

COOLIDGE FAMILY MAROONED ON TRIP

Washington, July 21 (Universal).—President Coolidge's first "landing party" from the yacht Mayflower since he has been in the White House took place at a deserted spot on the Virginia shore of the Potomac, involved him and his party in an irritating dilemma.

With Mrs. Coolidge, Colonel Coolidge, his father, and his son, John, the President was landed near Wakefield, seventy-five miles down the Potomac. They made use of a launch which drew up close to a shelving bank.

Along grass grown paths the little group made its way to the lone monument to the "Father of His Country." After viewing the simple shaft for a few minutes, the President and all family retraced their steps to the beach—and found the tide so low that the Mayflower launch could not draw in to take them off.

U. S. CAN HALT WAR, DECLARES HENRY FORD

War Can Be Made So Terrible, Says Auto Builder, None Will Want to Fight

New York, July 20.—"The United States is in a position to prevent the next great war."

So said in his conclusions at Henry Ford, who points out that the industrial output production of these United States independent of the rest of the world, is sufficient to permit the manufacture of explosives on a colossal scale hitherto undreamed of by munitions manufacturers, and that "develop war power beyond anything that has ever been known."

WAR NOT INEVITABLE.

"In the interests of peace, it seems that we shall have to develop this power."

Ford so declares in an interview with Samuel Crowther, published this week in Collier's.

"The world does not seem to be tired of war, in spite of the fact that everybody had said nothing else in the last war. People are still thinking that force and force alone is important, and they are going to go on thinking in that way until a force appears which makes the biggest forces they can muster trivial in comparison.

Asserting that his interest in Muscle Shoals was that of preserving a national asset of vital value in a possible national emergency, Ford says that if a better development method than the one he suggested is offered it should be adopted.

TO DEVELOP AIRPLANES.

He adds that locating the plant of nitrates to farmers is "pure, petty business."

Ford has converted part of his large Dearborn plant into an aviation field, contending that the aeroplane is perfect for making instruments, can be commercially developed as soon as fuels (for airplanes) are taken up on a commercial way. He added:

"As soon as we know as much about them as we do about automobiles and rail will not be long—they can be built by the thousands or by the millions."

The "queer combination" of banking and business abroad is a cause of war as a contest for markets, Ford thinks. In America he added:

"The home market is our chief concern. We have no temptation to make war for trade purposes."

GUN QUARANTINE TO HALT ANTHRAX

Jackson, Miss., July 21 (Universal).—The ravages of anthrax in the vicinity of Natchez have become so serious that shotgun quarantine is being set in county borders to prevent the passage of any animals suspected of having been exposed to the dread malady.

Little has been said or published concerning the alarming spread of anthrax but conditions have reached the stage where the Federal government may take drastic action, as the Mississippi and other rivers and streams have been polluted, thus endangering the herds of live stock in all directions and establishing a menace to human life.

YOUTH LOSES FOUR FINGERS AT BEACH

John Travato, 17 years old, of No. 38 Charter street, North End, lost four fingers of his right hand when he caught it in the machinery of an amusement device at Revere Beach.

ALLSTON GIRL IS SAVED AT NANTASKET

Miss Elvira Badarraco, sixteen years old, of No. 23 Buckminster street, Allston, was rescued from drowning at Whitehead, Nantasket, by Nicholas Grant of East Weymouth as hundreds of Sunday visitors to the resort looked on.

Miss Badarraco is stopping at a beach hotel with her parents and was swimming some distance from the beach when she found herself losing strength. Before her cries for aid could be heard she was quite a distance from shore.

Grant saw her plight and dashed into the breakers, swimming to her aid and bringing the almost unconscious girl ashore where she was resuscitated.

BANDITS HOLD UP AND ROB STORE OWNER

The Dorchester police are searching for four young bandits who held up and robbed the store of Max Clayman, No. 1112 Blue Hill avenue early Sunday morning.

Clayman told the police that he was just about to close the store when the four men entered the shop with drawn revolvers. Two of the bandits covered Clayman and his wife, while the other two rifled the cash register of its contents.

Clayman had just removed the day's receipts and there was only $50 in the money drawer, which the thieves took.

RED CROSS LIFE-SAVER TO AID VOLUNTEERS

Captain Jack Wallace of the Red Cross has been assigned by his chiefs to devote all his time to the Boston American Volunteer Life Saving Corps. He will be assisted by Bobby Muir, Y. M. C. A. swimming and life-saving instructor.

This means a new schedule of hours for training the volunteers. From now on, Magazine Beach will be the scene of coaching and tests on Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning at 10, on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 3 and on Tuesday and Thursday evening at 6.30.

Captain Wallace has the first batch of Volunteers who could demonstrate ready to certify as experts and he has asked these men to get to work at their favorite beaches or training corps of their own which will later affiliate with the American and the Red Cross.

A new bunch of men, boys and girls reported today and while Wallace took them in hand, Bob Muir, Olive Holland, Pauline Kelin, Ed Mulvey and other Red Cross instructors put the seasoned ones through their tests.

The Red Cross life-saving methods, which volunteers for the Boston American are taught, teach men, women, boys and girls how to break the death grips of the struggling drowning persons, how to tow them ashore and how to work expertly at artificial respiration.

The American life guards will be constantly on the watch for bathers in distress at the beaches and for canoeists in trouble on the Charles River.

The Boys' Club of Charlestown has offered the Boston American the use of its pool for teaching boys and men the life-saving methods.

EXPERT SAYS CANCER DUE TO OVEREATING

Copenhagen, July 21.—Civilization is blamed for the increase of cancer by Dr. Tikkel Hindhede, Danish nutrition expert, in a report on the disease which he has just made public. He points out that the non-cultured races and aborigines do not contract cancer of the digestive organs until they become acquainted with civilization's despots.

Dr. Hindhede believes that cancer is due chiefly to overeating of rich food, and claims that the higher standard of living everywhere during the last fifty years has been responsible for the higher death rate.

Life Savers

DRAWN BY POPINI

"HELP! Help!" Frantic appals for aid resound as two experienced, swimmers find themselves in desperate danger of drowning in the deep waters of love—those waters that gleam so brightly, so invitingly, yet which may hide treacherous whirlpools and cross currents in their mysterious depths.

But—it's strange, isn't it?—the victims seem to enjoy their danger. Perhaps they are buoyed up by the hope of attracting the attention and enlisting the aid of two lovely life-savers lingering near by. Who would not come close to drowning for the sake of such a rescue? And to encourage Liem still more, Cupid himself is bringing to their aid his magic life-preserver and promises personally to direct HIS life-saver's efforts—when they are ready to give thought to the deeds of daring-do they are to perform.—POPINI.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MOTHER, dear! You're having a hard time with that girl of yours, aren't you? Nothing you can say seems to reach her, does it?

And you're just about at your wits' end trying to make her see right from wrong—trying to make her realize the foolishness and scramble that's going on amongst the youngsters.

You're sick with worrying over it, and your inability to make her understand. I know. Why, it doesn't seem a day since you knew every thought in her head. Remember how she used to ape your every action, quote your every word?

She was your tiny shadow. And now she's a stranger. Your own little daughter, a stranger!

You've done everything. Everything! You've argued and scolded and begged and stormed and wept and frozen and commanded and threatened. But in spite of it all, she defies you openly, or sneaks behind your back, doesn't she?

If you corner her, she says, "You don't understand!" Isn't that so, dear? And that hurts worst of all, doesn't it? For you're so sure that you DO understand, aren't you?

You look at your face in the glass and you know that that face looks old to other people. But it doesn't look old to you, does it? No, it looks just as it did when you were nineteen. It has hardly changed a particle?

Why should it have changed—you haven't inside, have you? You're just as impulsive and dreamy and rebellious and emotional. You long to do all sorts of crazy things, don't you? Just as you did when you were her age. Romance—curiosity—gypsy voices calling you away from duty and work—calling, calling. Yet she says you "don't understand." "Don't understand!"—when you know all these things about yourself!

Yes, you know all these things about yourself, Mother, but does she know them? You want her to be a decent, hard-working, conscientious woman as you are, but what inducements are you offering?

Hard work, stupidity, resignation—that's what she sees. She thinks you're decent because you don't want to be and can't be anything else. She thinks you work hard because you don't want to play.

She doesn't see a respectable life as a triumph—she sees it as a Spineless Surrender. And she sees her own rebellion as something noble and vital.

Do you think that your scolding and weeping and commanding are going to change that viewpoint of hers? It won't. Why should it?

SQUAREDEAL FOR CHILD

—By Wm. A. McKeever—

Noted Lecturer and Authority on Educational and Sociological Subjects

ONE hundred and twenty parents were assembled to listen to a lecture on child welfare. "One common fault of intelligent parents," the speaker said, "is to try to force the mind of the child ahead of the body, to whip the little learner into the grade ahead of where he should be placed while his physique shrivels from neglect. In such a case you are likely to have what seems a smart child, but later he will suffer from some kind of setback.

"Another common fault is to feed children too much rich food, and with too much irregularity. Careful tests will show that many of these young victims live in a chronic state of auto-intoxication. "The tired, auto-intoxicated child is invariably cross, hard to please, unreasonable in his requests and overbearing in his treatment of other little ones."

Then came a confession. There were twenty cases of parents who acknowledged an effort to shove their little ones ahead in the school grade. Thirty-two acknowledged that their children of tender years had been put to bed the evening before with the weight of a sick remorse.

Childhood is far too precious a thing for untrained parents to tamper with.

YOUR BEAUTY

HOW TO REDUCE YOUR ARMS TO TRUE BEAUTY STANDARD

By Maria Jeritza,
Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

HAVE you ever noticed a woman, in a sleeveless frock with a face of bright color and youthful vivacity, but with arms and hands that seemed not to go with her face? Possibly they were lifeless-looking, of a grayish color. Or her upper arms, by their flabby over-largeness may have given a settled look of middle-age to a figure otherwise symmetrical and youthful.

Scarcely less unattractive are the puny, undersized arms of the woman whose face has the look of youth but whose scrawny, weak-looking arms fail to carry out this illusion.

Modern clothes are merciless. Even though artificial color may serve to hide the ravages of neglected health, so far as the face is concerned, the overweight or underweight indicated by puny or flabby throat, arms, shoulders, hands and ankles tell their own story of ill-regulated living.

Where there is poor circulation there can be no charm of coloring in arms, shoulders or hands. Their lifeless grayish look gives the lie to cosmetics applied, however cunningly, to the face. So the wisest plan is not just to try to imitate a look of glowing health and beauty, but by sensible living really possess in every detail the beauty that is the bloom of health.

If your arms are not symmetrical, you cannot look your best. But fortunately the defect can be remedied.

My advice is to row a boat every day or else swim every day you can this Summer. If these fine forms of exercise are impossible in your case, why not buy a wall exerciser, attach it to the wall of your bedroom and use it vigorously every morning? This appliance is not expensive and it will in a short time do wonders for your neck, shoulders, arms and chest. Also, it is fun to use an exerciser.

I am going to suggest an exercise to you today that should, provided you practice it faithfully, burn away any excess fat about your shoulders and upper arms and reduce them to true symmetry. Also it will keep the circulation of blood active through your arms, shoulders and hands, banishing the gray, lifeless look that is so unbecoming.

First, stand straight, your heels together, your weight over the balls of your feet and your hands brought together palm to palm, wrists resting at the centre of your head, akeelie fashion.

Now throw your hands and forearms backward, keeping your arms on a level with your shoulders, elbows bent, palms forward.

This will leave you in somewhat the posture you may have seen the victims of a movie holdup assume when the villain called, "Hands up!"

Return to first position. Repeat the movement ten times or more.

In this exercise in throwing the hands and forearms back the force of the motion should come at the elbows, not at the hands. As you will find upon trying it, the exercise brings almost all of the muscles of your shoulders, upper arms, elbows and forearms into vigorous play. It should be repeated, vigorously but smoothly, ten times or more in case of too-large arms.

The girl who is trying to increase the size of her arms, on the other hand, should take the exercise more gently and slowly. In addition, she should massage either olive oil, cocoa butter or a good cold cream into her arms before retiring each night.

PARIS SENDS NEW IDEAS

Paris: Tan and black kasha are combined in the frock at the left. The long over-blouse is very tube-like in silhouette and covered with embroidered motifs in beige and black silk. Beneath the edge of the over-blouse is seen a shallow pleated flounce of black kasha, while beneath that is placed still another flounce, this time of kasha to match the blouse. The embroidered bands on the bodice and the deep cuffs are of black kasha worked in beige.

A sheer frock of plaided chiffon in red, green and black on a white ground is shown at the right. Circular godets are set in at each side and give a flimsy, floating effect to the skirt. A square decolletage is partially covered by an exceedingly long scarf of chiffon to match. There are no sleeves and the frock is bottless.

SEQUEL OF CHICKIE

By Elenore Meherin

The Intensely True Story of a Boston Girl Who Seeks a Love That Is Real

"WHAT kiss, when he said with his young eyes looking into hers: "Ah, frail—I would it were thee and me.—" Oh—the flame and the purity of that sweet, lost emotion!

Barbara's eyes were lighted with it the same, same thing.

But there came other days; that hour of crucifixion. She knew she would have to go away—and alone. So she bought the wedding ring. How she had wanted marriage! How then, with the story of it gone. It was a kind, protecting thing. Why, she had gone to him and asked for it.

She had been dented. Could she stand up now with another at the head, full tide, stand up and smile; not think at all; not go back and take again the desperate hurt? No—

Heedless of Words

She said, not raising her eyes, but borne away with these thoughts and heedless of her words: "How could I, Barbara? I never could at all—"

"Oh, why, why, Chickie? Just because you work in my father's office? But Paul's sister works. How can that count? I care more for you than any girl I know. We seemed so near that month when you came to our house. I should think you'd really want to stand with me—"

"I would, of course." Chickie braced herself, strained for an excuse. "What about Edith?"

Barbara's eyes were soft. Now they lighted and filled. "Is that it, Chickie? Oh, is it?"

"Oh, well—"

"Why—she's frightened to death! She was coming herself to ask you. She's afraid things won't come out right now, and it will be her fault. So, you see—"

"Really?"

"Oh, yes! So, will you? You will, Chickie?"

Chickie reached for her purse. She smiled faintly, fumbling blindly for self-control. "Let's go, then, Barbara. It's quite late."

"Oh, you darling thing!" Barbara caught Chickie's arm, pressed it. The eager joy of her look made Chickie wince. "I know you will now—won't you?"

"All right—oh, all right—"

Barbara said warmly. "You've just saved everything! You're just too darling for words!"

Declined Dinner

At the boarding house Chickie didn't go into the dining room. She walked rapidly and softly—from the bureau to the bed, then to the window.

In her mind was an image of herself in the shimmering gown of blue, the great picture hat, Barbara said she was to wear. The image looked at her with pale lips and wide, frightened eyes.

She stood at the window, pressing her hands against the sill. In the back yard Wildie stretched at full length, his nose stuck perversely between his jaws. Her image pressed at her shoulder, bewildered and accusing. "Why did you promise? You can't! Oh, you know that!"

But she remained motionless, her breath dry and swelling. She said, "It's done—well—"

Her agitation grew until there seemed a clamor about her—until she fancied voices shouting. "You shouldn't! Why did you! How dared you!"

The image of herself in the gleaming drape shifted. It became a phantom in a black coat running through oak trees, kneeling on the ground blowing a breath between still baby lips. Then Chickie said aloud, "Hush—oh, stop—"

She Lay Awake

And that night, lying awake, she thought of Jonathan kneeling at her bed, rugged head bowed against her hands. Oh—if she could feel him near now; if she could be there with the two of them again. And if the great, sinewy arms would but wind about her, draw her back from this folly. She wished that Jennie would reach up her thin, gentle hand, draw her face down. Yes—even the old eyes were always wet against her cheeks.

The next morning dressing for work she tried to recall the different things Barbara had said; tried to remember just how she came to yield. The weakness of this dismayed and chilled her. She thought: "I'm just the same—the very same—give in! Ho—then cry—"

She decided with a sudden verve: "I'll call her up—"

"Oh, I'm glad to do a thing for Barbara."

But as the time drew near, especially when Barbara called for her and they went together for a fitting of the bridesmaid gown, Chickie was beside herself with nerves. She said to the dressmaker: "It doesn't matter how it goes. Any way will do. There—take it off—"

Soft Beauty

Seeing herself with that soft, yielding beauty; seeing her own eyes dark and widened, she recoiled with a start from all this bright, radiant festivity. Not for her—anyone would have sense enough for that!

Barbara said: "You must come tomorrow night for dinner. We'll all be there. I want you to meet them."

"Let me off, Barbara. Let me just come to the wedding."

"You want to meet a few, Chickie. Papa's sister—you have to come. You'd have to come for the rehearsal anyway, and that will be Monday—as soon as ever Myra gets here."

So Chickie went. She wore the black dress she had bought for the holiday with Jake. It made her hair ever so golden and her skin lustrous as pearls.

Barbara said excitedly: "You look gorgeous—a perfect angel!"

They went into the drawing room. Edith was talking to a lithe, dark-skinned man with well-cut features, a polished ease of Latin cast to his face and a warm manner like a courtier. He had a husky tone in his voice. The maid's name was Lulu Lamarck.

He bowed low when Chickie was introduced. Raising his head, surprise flashed into his face, then admiration. It was too open. Chickie colored.

Dressed in Black

Edith said airily: "You look very charming, Miss Bryce. I have never seen you in black before."

Lulu Lamarck added with a soft, bold laugh. "Black is a good foil for star or sun."

He was Chickie's dinner partner. She found him too ready. Flattery embarrassed her. Inwardly she felt a scorn for men who said those soft, swooning things. She often wished that she was brazen like Janina; that she could say: "Oh, cease sir h chatter! The long since I learned the ABC of masculine stupidity—"

But she was too considerate of another's feelings. Now she only half listened. Across the table Lee Willman's eyes followed her every move. She was aware of this.

And at the opposite end Edith Porter studied Ralph, her fingers in a bored, haughty way. She seemed to be looking down and pitying everyone.

Lamarck's voice kept up its husky, indifferent answers.

At last they were leaving the table. They began to dance. His arm swept about her waist.

"I'm sorry, I don't dance."

"No—and you don't listen, do you? But you walk most gracefully. Where to, Miss Bryce? The piazza? There is a—"

"It will do quite nicely here."

He smiled, sitting beside her. "You didn't hear a word I said at the table, did you, my dear?"

"Were they pearls of great price, Mr. Lamarck?"

Velvet Eyes

His velvet brown eyes moistened as at a challenge, and his hand stealing over went to press hers. She drew it quietly to her lap.

"Ah—you play the game as an artist, Miss Bryce."

She answered wearily: "You sing the old songs like a veteran."

"Can you be tired of them already, my dear? I have others." He gave his soft, bold laugh. "You shall hear."

The trifling talk oppressed her—made her feel strangely out of tune. She rose. "A pleasure for the future, Mr. Lamarck. I must go."

She crossed the room—embarrassed—finding herself unescorted. A door was open. She went into this—then another. It was the long, secluded room Lee Willman had decorated. In a corner was a low shelf—over it a picture of some dim, beautiful face. On the shelf two great candles burned. Chickie stood here, leaning on her clasped hands. The candle light made her hair a halo.

Suddenly she felt a presence. She turned. Facing her, his arms folded, his eyes touched with humble adoration, Lee Willman stood. He moved quietly toward her. He touched her hands, murmuring as though it were a prayer: "I love you."

The Recognition

His hands touched on hers. In the dim candlelight his face had a white, exalted look, as though he stood before a sanctuary.

Chickie turned from it; turned toward the lighted shelf.

But he stood behind her, holding her arms: "Helen—wait!" He raised the candle till its soft amber glow suffused the shadowed image hanging between the lights: Look!"

The face of a girl with bright, soft hair, a questioning sadness on her young lips; beauty and a quiet in her eyes—Chickie's face. She gazed at it, awed, half frightened at the revelation of her soul. She turned with a little beseeching gesture: "Let me go!"

Willman smiled. "Do you like it? The spirit of the room; the most beautiful thing you, Helen!" Flame and eagerness in all his look.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"WHAT'S to stop us from going straight down to that house? Your friend will surely let us in, won't she, Evvy?"

Ann Lisle

"Yes," answered Evvy.

"Can you stand going again?" I cried.

"You'll bet!"

Up to stand it. It's the one way to—make sure," said Ralph.

Evvy Mason, Ralph Lacey and I left the restaurant and whirled down to the waterfront in tense silence. I knew my friends refrained from conversation out of consideration for me. And while I was fumbling for poise and self-possession somehow I felt buoyed up by gratitude.

At last the cab turned into a vaguely familiar street.

And then we stopped before the very house where Ralph and The Searcher for Lost Persons had taken me after we heard about Evvy's recognizing Neal on the dock. We had missed Neal there by a fraction of time.

Evvy led Ralph and me up the ramshackle steps. A trick of memory made me feel that the place betokened suffering. At the top of the steps Evvy turned to us, and said:

"Wait here while I go into the vestibule and persuade Mrs. Stebbins to let me bring you in."

"Oh, no!" I pleaded hysterically, afraid to risk it. "She might turn us away. And I want to—know—for sure. Don't take any chances Ralph. We've more to learn by going to the room where Evvy heard the men talking of him."

But Evvy was beckoning already and did not stop to argue further. Ralph applied his shoulder to the heavy oak door and he flung it wide aside and let me precede him in the little square of semi-darkness.

"Quiet!" admonished Evvy. "Mrs. Stebbins says he is as much as her life is worth to be seen letting 'swells' like us into her place. But I think she's really taken rather a fancy to me. A dubious compliment, perhaps. But still—a handy situation, isn't it, Ralph?"

"You've managed splendidly," he said generously.

Then Evvy motioned to the inner door which was slightly ajar. And when Ralph had pushed this open in turn, she led the way into a hall smelling of creamed cod and mackerel and spirits and defiance of law and order.

Up the dark narrow stairs slipped Evvy like a little flitting shadow of silence. We followed. One stairway and then a second flight of till more rickety steps. Down a dingy hall where murky gas jets flickered in the foggy gloom we went. And then Evvy led the way into a little room faintly lighted by an airshaft window.

"Here's where I was when I overheard them," she whispered.

As she stepped forward to the big double doors which were ajar only so much as their rickety fatherire to close neatly necessitated, a sharp sound startled me. It roared out like a shot. I jumped, but I found Ralph's reassuring hand on my arm.

"A window curtain flew up across the court," he whispered. "I think we're being—observed."

Ralph stepped forward to the double doors. Evvy gasped out a protest. But Ralph pushed them wide, revealing an empty room. Evvy and I followed Ralph into the room beyond the double doors. It was brighter than the room from which we had come, but it was, nevertheless, in a sort of twilight repose.

MARTHA LEE'S RADIO CHATS ON COOKING

By MARTHA LEE
Broadcast from Station WNAC, The Shepard Store.

DELICIOUS AND NUTRITIOUS HOT WEATHER MACARONI DISHES.

SUMMER is the season of light eating, short cooking, salads, fresh fruits and vegetables. Macaroni is a logical candidate for a quickly prepared dish as an entree, a salad, pudding, etc. It is prepared scientifically from pure farina, and can be cooked in 15 minutes. For some reason which has never been very clearly defined, macaroni has always been regarded as a Winter food. People who eat it regularly in cold weather, seem by common consent to omit it from their Summer foods, or to serve it only on an occasional Friday.

This is an especially peculiar habit when it is considered that bread, crackers, cereals, etc., are eaten as freely—perhaps more freely—in the Summer as at any other time of the year. Macaroni is purely a wheat product, higher in food value than bread, meat, and it would seem as if its quality and characteristics would have long ago caused it to be a popular and highly regarded hot weather food.

For Giving Strength

For building up young bodies, for giving strength and vigor to the whole family, they have no equal.

No other food so thoroughly takes the place of potatoes being more substantial, more healthy and nourishing.

Spaghetti and egg noodles are every day foods too. Try them as a change from potatoes. They are "Quick to get ready." Take but 10 or 11 minutes to cook. No trouble, no waste like in peeling potatoes.

One of the recipes for hot weather I have frequently recommended is sliced meat and potato salad. This menu is very popular but the salad does not necessarily have to be potato. Either boiled rice or boiled macaroni carefully prepared can take the place of this starchy vegetable. Whether cold roast pork, beef or chicken is used the meat should, of course be sliced very thin as nothing is more unappetizing and unattractive than chunks of broken meat cut the wrong way of the grain.

Cook Until Tender

Macaroni for salads should be cooked in plenty of rapidly boiling water until it is tender. The usual time is 8 or 10 minutes. Cold salads the elbow macaroni is really the most desirable on account of its convenient length. Many more variations of macaroni salads are possible than of potato salads. All are improved by a little grated onion. Either mayonnaise or boiled salad dressing may be used with them.

The big advantage of making salads out of macaroni is that you avoid having a dirty, messy kitchen from peeling potatoes. Besides you have 100% waste in the peels, your hands get red, rough and grimy and it's dirty, disagreeable work. Potatoes take 25 to 40 minutes to peel and cook, while macaroni will only take about 10 minutes.

The next time you prepare a salad just try macaroni salad in any favorite form. The recipe is as follows:

Take 2 cups of macaroni and plenty of boiling water. Add 1 tsp. of salt, boil rapidly until tender. 1 large head of lettuce, 1 onion grated fine, ½ cup of celery diced, ¼ cup of shredded cabbage, ¼ pimento cut, 1 tsp. chopped parsley, 1 tsp. sugar and 1 cup of mayonnaise.

The proper method of mixing the ingredients with mayonnaise, is to let it stand about ½ hour, then add the chilled macaroni, serve in crisp lettuce leaves; add more mayonnaise or French dressing if desirable.

This makes a very delicious dish.

Stuffed Tomatoes with Macaroni

Put 2 cups of macaroni in 2 quarts of boiling salted water, cook until tender, stir occasionally. Then place macaroni in colander and shake until thoroughly drained. Never start to cook in cold or merely warm water.

Cut top of 8 ripe tomatoes and scoop out centre. Melt 3 tbsps. butter, add 2 tbsps. flour, gradually add 1 cup milk; stir constantly. Remove from fire, add seasoning, 1 cup of left over meat, ½ cup cheese. Mix. Fill tomatoes with the mixture, cover with bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven until tomatoes are cooked taking care that they do not break. (Pricking tomatoes with a pin, helps to hold them firm). Place remainder of cooked macaroni in the center of platter, surround with baked tomatoes. Garnish with hard boiled sliced eggs and parsley.

Casserole of Ham and Spaghetti

Put 2 cups of spaghetti in 3 quarts of boiling salted water, cook until tender, drain occasionally. Then place spaghetti in colander and shake until thoroughly drained. Never start to cook in cold or merely warm water. Use 2 cups of minced boiled ham, 2 green peppers diced. Make a white sauce of 2 tbsps. butter, 2 level tbsps. flour and 2 cups milk. Season to taste and mix all together and fill a casserole. Cover with buttered breadcrumbs, and brown in oven.

Italian Sauce for Spaghetti or Macaroni Dishes

Heat a large tbsp. of butter and add 1 level tsp. each of mushrooms, parsley, onion (chopped), and ½ a bay leaf; add a level tbsp. flour, stir and cook; add, stirring half cup each of white wine and stock (consomme soup may be used), salt, pepper and 1 small blade of mace. Simmer half hour, rub, skim off fat, strain and serve poured over boiled macaroni or spaghetti.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When one has a room engaged at a hotel for one night and one goes out during the evening, should the key be turned in at the desk and called for when one returns?

AURIEL.

1. Is it correct to call on a gentleman at a hotel? If so does one go up or ask to be shown to the room?

2. In removing a tiny piece of other indigestible substance from the mouth while eating, does one use the fingers or a fork?

3. When leaving several people to whom one has just been introduced, is it correct to murmur all of them by saying: "I'm very glad to have met every one?"

4. Does one drink bouillon from the cup?

5. Does one drink from the saucer?

AURIEL.

YES, this is the most convenient way to do.

It is not correct for a lady to call on a gentleman at a hotel.

2. It is most awkward and unsightly to take it from your mouth with a fork. Anything that must be removed from the mouth should be taken between the first finger and the thumb.

4. It is easier to say: "I'm very glad to have met you," using "you" in the plural sense, and including the group in your glances as you say the gracious words.

5. With the spoon take the first few sips, in order to test the heat, and then simply drink the rest of the bouillon.

GRID LEAK IS IMPORTANT IN RADIO SET

Change in Value of Frequency Gives Much Better Volume and Quality

The average broadcast fan does not realize the importance of the grid leak condenser and the grid leak.

These parts are small, but they largely control the action of the detector tube. Both the volume and the clarity of the signals depend upon the proper value of grid condenser and grid leak.

An important factor which determines the grid current is the number of negative electrons which are attracted to the grid from the filament. The negative charges on the grid sometimes reach a point where they practically stop the flow of plate current. The grid current piles up the electrons and unless a grid leak is used the tube will become chocked and will not operate properly.

If the grid leak is incorrect in size the tube will only operate at a percentage of its efficiency. Each type of vacuum tube requires a different grid leak and grid condenser. Usually the manufacturer supplies the value of the grid condenser and the grid leak with the tube when it is purchased.

In some cases you will find that you need a variable grid leak for good results. As a grid leak having a resistance of between two and five megohms is satisfactory for average use. If you are desirous of using a fixed grid leak, try several befors resorting to any particular value.

On the Air Last Night

By THE LISTENER

The afternoon band concerts which WNAC broadcast from the Parkman Bandstand was the outstanding event of yesterday's entertainment. I speak of this particular program on account of the excellent manner in which it was microphoned, and reached local listeners within reasonable distance of the city. An excellent program is useless from an entertainment viewpoint, if the station broadcasting it fades away and is interfered with by various unpleasant squeals and static. The program furnished yesterday by Stone's Military Band was excellence in itself—but the real beauty of it was that it came through loud enough and sufficiently clear. You felt somehow or other as though you didn't have to touch your set once you got tuned in.

Fading was the most noticeable factor in last night's receptions. I got it with practically every station on the dial. The organ recital and piano music from WHZ was wonderful, only for the fading. The peculiar phenomenon, unexplainable by the greatest experts, seems bound to baffle humanity for at least another few years. Famous scientists like Heaviside, of Great Britain, and well known experimenters like Eastman of Cambridge, have their ideas of fading, and they all are convincing, but the time is yet to come when we will successfully combat it.

For exquisite beauty—allowing, of course, for fading and various other bugaboos which pester the listener—I thought the concert broadcast through WGY of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra took the prize. The fading seemed to play havoc with WGY last night. But whatever snatches of this beautiful orchestra did come through the loudspeaker, they were treats in themselves. In having a massive symphony such as the New York Philharmonic play in the open air, you lose the objectionable "room tone" which is always in evidence when they play in a closed room. When you consider the fact that acoustic properties do not have to be reckoned with in open air broadcasting, how it must seem likely that this method of "microphoning" various events has marvelous possibilities!

PORTABLE ACME SET FILLS SUIT CASE

Complete Equipment, Including Loop, Loop Speaker and Battery Self Contained

Two Boston radio men have succeeded in squeezing the four-tube Acme set, a loop set and portable batteries into a suit case which contains everything needed for the operation of the set.

A. C. Kennedy, of Spencer street, Dorchester, and C. A. Nason, of Cambria street, Boston, designed the loud speaker and loop and the battery and receiver arrangement.

The loop is wound around the inside of the case, and is not visible. The receiver is in the top half of the case, with the batteries cleverly arranged with the loud speaker in the lower part of the case.

The sets are made up with either UV199 or UV201A tubes. The former are designed for dry cells, while the latter may be used either with dry batteries or a storage battery wherever necessary. A set with UV201A tubes used by one of the American radio stuff gave good service with fairly constant use with four Burgess dry cells for about a month. They now read a shade over 4½ volts and seem to give good volume. Not over five volts should be used at any time.

A set using UV199 tubes did not give as good volume or as good quality as the set with 201A tubes. The Acme transformers are designed for use with 201A tubes, and this may be the cause of the difference in results.

The smallest size of B battery are used, with a total of 90 volts. The same plate voltage is used for both the 199 and the 201A set.

The Acme set was found to be as effective as the regular Acme sets using the same size loop and tubes. The receiver part is the standard Acme hookup, except that a specially made crystal detector is used instead of the Brownlie adjustable which is commonly used.

Radio Queries

Built your four-tube Super and it works fine with a single exception—I cannot tune above 599 meters. I am going to build a variocoupler which I want to take in stations from 100 to 650 meters. What turns and taps shall I need, using No. 24 d. c. wire?

A few more turns on the secondaries will fix the Super up. The variocoupler with a range from 100 to 650 is a tough job. Your coupler wound for 650 meters would have so much dead-end loss for 100 meters as to make it nearly useless. It is better to wind a variocoupler for 100 meters as described in the recent article, and then provide loading coils for the secondary and tickler. The load coil for the tickler should have about 60 turns, and the load coil for the tickler about forty or fifty turns. The two latter should have variable coupling. The large tickler coil is designed to make up for the low coupling.

Have just built an eight tube Ultradyne and am receiving fine broadcasting in an distant stations. Noise is not noticeable, only one tube squeals and this I rep on near nights, but is always present on distant stations.

Most likely cause is incorrect value of variable grid leak or too much grid detector tubes. It may be due to the presence of gas in one or more of the amplifier tubes.

Cannot get WGY or KDKA on 100 meter set. Although I got them on 200 meters taken off three turns tickler and secondary with results equally as good. I take it, however, if you are getting this station at 200 meters that you should get them on 100 meters that this is a harmonic and the set is C. R. Do not remove any turns as fifteen is the correct number. It may be necessary to add turns on the tickler to secure regeneration. Remember that too many turns on the tickler makes it very sharp, and if you have too few turns you will lose the high notes. Also remember that too fast you may miss even the better stations. Should you get WGY or KDKA by harmonics you will help out get WGY and KDKA if you keep at it.

I have built a short wave set which will not regenerate to below 150 meters on the code as low as 100 meters. C. J. W.

You may have regenerated, but I doubt this is not the trouble, you should add a few turns to the tickler coil. Short wave sets built by us would give audio regeneration beyond a point. Turn the condenser dial when the tickler was sufficiently low in inductance. If too many turns are frequently the case, the tickler then will not oscillate. Also sets in which there are too many turns will sometimes lose more tickler than gained.

Used Simmons coils on the Super and got good results. Then replaced them with Acme coils and now I makes no difference whether the r.f. tube is on or off, I get whatever is coming in as good. E. W.

Probably you have primary and secondary tuned. This is not necessary for reception to continue when the r.f. tube is removed, but there should be a great improvement when it is lighted. It may be that the B battery connection with the r. f. tube is broken.

HOW LISTENER CHECKS RADIO INTERFERENCE

ROUND HILLS RADIO CORPORATION
BROADCASTING
AND GENERAL RADIO BUSINESS
SOUTH DARTMOUTH, MASS. July 15, 1924.

Mr. Alden B. Roag,
Radio Editor, Boston American,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:

Upon receipt of your letter of July 2nd, in regard to the interference existing between Station WNAC and two others, we immediately took the matter up with the U. S. Supervisor of Radio at Boston. He visited our station shortly afterwards and assigned to our station the wave length of 360.8 meters, and to WJAR the wave length of 384.4 meters. This, in his opinion, is sufficient to eliminate all cause for complaint.

We should be glad to hear from you further, in the event you still have complaints.

Very truly yours,

ROUND HILLS RADIO CORPORATION

M. A. STAHL
PRESIDENT

REPORT FROM WMAF

Following persistent reports by the Boston American Listener that considerable interference existed between WNAC, the Round Hills Corporation station in South Dartmouth, and other 360 meter stations, the American's radio editor called the attention of Col. Green, owner of WMAF, to this trouble, with the result indicated above. Because of his experience both with broadcasting and commercial code work, the American's Listener is particularly well qualified to run down such cases as this.

Rust and Corrosion Menaces Iron Ore Resources

Chicago, July 21 (A. P.)—Rolling rust and corrosion costs approximately two and a half billion dollars a year, according to W. J. Orchard, superintendent of the DuPont Company of Chicago.

"This sum spent annually to counteract the progress of corrosion and rust will give a fair idea of the total bill the world is paying for the discovery of metals used in industrial work, which are not protected against them," he declared. "It is a vital matter because the yearly waste is making the iron ore resources of the world more valuable within a measurable distance of time."

'SPARKS' HEAD LIST FOR 2RM

Fans Report Most Interference Is Caused by Spark Stations

The final talk of the series by John V. L. Hogan, consulting radio engineer and past president of the Institute of Radio Engineers, before WEAF's microphone, concluded with a request for specific data on interference difficulties. These have yielded very valuable figures.

The sources of greatest interference were spark telegraph signals, which were rated as the worst source of interference by 39 per cent, and cross talk (that is, interference from other broadcasting stations) 29.6 per cent.

Radio listeners were also requested to indicate their second and third choice as to the most troublesome sources of interference. Whistles were the second cause of interference on 43 per cent. of the questionnaires, spark on 37 per cent. and cross talk on 20 per cent. Third choice was assigned to cross talk by 46 per cent., whistles by 22.5 per cent. and spark by 17.5 per cent. of those replying to the questionnaire.

The consistency of these figures are notable. Spark interference holding first place in the first choice, second place in the second choice and third place in the third choice. Steps are being taken to reduce this. Although whistles hold only second place in the first choice, the analysis show it to be quite preponderant as the second worst cause of trouble. Educational campaigns are necessary to remove this source of interference.

When the first plunges in wavelength were made cross talk was negligible, the most serious difficulty but improvements in the design of sets and increased experience on the part of those operating them has made this trouble rank third in both first and second choice.

Arrangements are being made with radio telegraph companies for reducing traffic handled on wave lengths likely to interfere with broadcasts.

LONGER SEASON FOR BUILDING IS URGED

Washington, July 21 (Universal)—Abandonment of the seasonal custom in building construction is advocated by the report of the construction committee of the President's conference on unemployment, made public by the Department of Commerce.

The committee has been studying the seasonal fluctuations in the building industry since 1921. After these three years of observation, it is convinced that the long periods of building inactivity and the short periods of hectic building are unnecessary and that the building season could be lengthened to include almost the entire year.

"Climate, not climate, is mainly responsible for seasonal idleness in the construction industries," the report reads. "Contrary to popular belief, bad weather is not the principal cause of variation in employment from month to month."

The report shows that building can be accomplished in many of the months now considered as out of season and that more expense than in the so-called building months.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover wrote a foreword to the report in which he urges the need for lengthening the building season.

"SHIMMY QUEEN" SETS PACE AT RACES

GILDA GRAY

"Follies" dancer who caused a sensation at French track by appearing in three different gowns in the four hours required to run off seven horse races.

By C. F. BERTELLI

Paris, July 21 (Universal Cable).—"A dress for every race" may be the new slogan for Europe's fashionable women following the remarkable exploit of Gilda Gray, the American shimmy queen, who created a sensation at the famous Maisons Lafitte track by appearing in three different gowns during the four hours required to run the seven races.

Gilda, who has only been here a week and on her first trip at that, has leaped into immediate fame as the originator of the most daring stunt of the season.

Disappearing shortly after the second race into the confines of a padded limousine, reappearing in time for the big race, the International Empire Adam cup, attired in a totally different creation of red and white, contrasting with her first gown, which was a smart motoring costume.

After the fourth race she repeated the operation, this time wearing a sleeveless chemise gown embroidered with plumes.

Miss Gray was accompanied by her husband, Gil Boag, the Broadway Cabaret King, who is recovering from a short illness.

Rivaling the races, the tennis finals saw a smart crowd, including Mr. and Mrs. McAdoo, senior and junior; the Queen of Spain, Mrs. Oliver Belmont, Princess Helen of Roumania, Princess Marie of Greece, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Howells, Irene Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Gurnee Munn, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Davis and Alice Joyce.

ARRESTS IN BAY STATE ANGER R.I.

Flynn to Protest to Cox About Seizure of Officials Near Rutland

Providence, July 21.—Despite announcement from Massachusetts that the arrest there of Rhode Island State officials "was due to a case of mistaken identity" a wave of resentment is sweeping the capitol here.

Vigorous protests will be made today to Governor Cox and Attorney-General Benton of Massachusetts by Governor Flynn and Attorney-General Carpenter of Rhode Island.

Those in the party arrested, near Hodden, Mass., by State police, were Assistant Attorneys-General George Hurley and John P. Hartigan, Police Inspectors John McGuire and Louis Godfrey, and Thomas Lally and Matthew J. McGovern, who made the affidavits in the alleged bromide gas bomb plot, with Joseph Leoni of Providence, chauffeur.

Though they were held each in $300 bail, Captain George A. Parker of the Massachusetts State police telephoned to officials here, saying:

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

"It was purely a case of mistaken identity. One of the men in the party closely resembles a man for whom the State police were looking. I shall make no complaint against any of them and they will not have to appear in court at Worcester."

It was explained specifically that the arrests were brought about by Sergeant Edward J. Hackett, who had been set to watch for the other men and mistook McGovern for that man.

On the other hand, both Assistant-Attorney-General Hurley and Hartigan declared with emphasis that their identity had been established beyond a doubt when Sergeant Hackett stood them formally under arrest as suspicious persons.

"HE KNEW McGOVERN."

Mr. Hartigan said: "Sergeant Hackett knew McGovern, and had smoked and chatted with him at the hotel in Rutland."

Mr. Hurley said: "Sergeant Hackett showed plainly by his greeting and talk with McGovern in our presence that he knew him."

Mr. Hartigan said that when they were arrested the Rhode Island party stuck together and took no chances of losing Lally and McGovern in the mixup.

The men recently made affidavits that they had been employed by Republicans in connection with the planting of the gas bomb and with subsequent Republican Senators' movements in Massachusetts.

State authorities here are bitter in their denunciation of the action of the Massachusetts officers as high-handed and entirely without legal cause.

Attorney-General Carpenter announced his intention of taking up the matter with Attorney-General Benton of Massachusetts.

"I am not satisfied that the arrest was a mistake. Mr. Hurley and Mr. Hartigan were on duty at my direction and from my office investigating a crime committed in Rhode Island, and I want to know why they were detained by Massachusetts State police while on such duty.

"They were committing no offence, and a satisfactory explanation is due."

GOVERNOR FLYNN ANGRY.

In addition Governor Flynn of Rhode Island has taken steps to force the alleged illegal arrest and detention to a conclusion that will result in an explanation satisfactory to those involved as victims. He agreed to get in touch with Governor Cox of Massachusetts concerning the incident.

"It appears," Governor Flynn said, "that this matter runs deeper than the holding of these men as suspicious persons."

MONEY BIG CAUSE OF DIVORCE

Author Analyzes Marital Wrecks in Hearst's International Magazine

Money—family—friends—familiarity—another man or another woman—untidiness—too much talk.

There, Mr. and Mrs. Married Couple, are the seven rocks on which the bark of matrimony the world over is most likely to strike at any time. There are the seven fundamental causes of the so-called "divorce evil."

While divorces are mounting daily by leaps and bounds, and while judges, ministers and men and women in general are loudly shouting against divorce, the average man or woman has been asking, "What is the fundamental cause?"

CHARTS MARITAL ROCKS.

Kathleen Norris, famous novelist, herself a happy and successful wife, has studied the problem nicely and has arrived at pretty definite conclusions. In the August number of Hearst's International she upholds marriage and strikes a blow at divorce by pointing out the reasons for marital unhappiness, and in results charts for young couples, the rocks upon which the matrimonial bark may be wrecked. And she declares that the above seven reasons can be found at the bottom of practically all divorces.

Money is placed first. The husband worries about it and the wife wastes it in many cases, she says. Then comes the family—his or hers. Sometimes they both agonize over this for years. Friends, she says, inevitably cause disputes as husband or wife always shall dislike some of the other's friends.

Then comes familiarity. In too many marriages nothing is kept sacred, everything is coarsened, all the bloom disappears.

Looking into the divorce records of Greater Boston we find that Mrs. Norris knows whereof she speaks. All the cases can be listed under the headings she names as the fundamental causes of marital unhappiness.

CARELESS WORD DID IT.

Take a few at random. First, there is the divorce case that ended the strawberry shortcake romance of Walter B. Williams, Lynn's "boy millionaire," and his pretty wife, former Sari Bakeman, Brookline high school girl.

One night Williams called at the home of the girl to talk with her father. She made a strawberry shortcake. He liked it so much that a romance started which ended in marriage. For three years all was well. Then stumbling block No. 7 came in, and, according to the wife, too much talk came in. It came in the form of a careless word. Sari called her husband a liar.

Then there was the case of Joseph E. Cameron and his wife, Georgianna, of No. 7 Davis street, Neponset. This case fits stumbling block No. 4 very nicely.

According to the evidence introduced in the divorce court a neighbor happened to be passing the Cameron house. He testified that he stopped suddenly when he gazed upon the silhouette of a dancing couple in the Cameron home. The man in the case was not Mrs. Cameron's husband, the witness stated. It was then brought out that the wife and another man were caught in a raid and were fined by the court after the raid. Cameron was given his divorce.

FORTY YEARS, THEN NO. 1.

According to the court records Mrs. Jennie S. Priest and her husband, Walter, of Watertown, lived together for forty years before they struck against stumbling block No. 1. Then they hit the rock hard. Mrs. Priest has filed suit for separate support and charges that her husband will not support her. She also charges cruelty.

And last comes the famous marital sensation which burst upon Boston society when the beautiful and young Mrs. Jack Sanborn separated from handsome, dashing young Jack, son of the Boston "Coffee King." Mrs. Sanborn, former Eleanore Montgomery, was married to Jack but three months when their friends were simply astounded by the report that they had separated. Wild rumor followed wild rumor around for some time and all Boston's social set were talking about the affairs of the young Winchester social lion and his wife.

MAN IS SLASHED BY GANG OF BOOTLEGS

Worcester, July 21.—A hand to hand razor battle, followed by a running gun fight by two gangs, one of which is believed to have been composed of Rhode Island rum runners, resulted in injury to one man and the temporary holding of three others, Mario Manic thirty-one, of Lyon street was the man slashed with the razor. Those held were James Rose of Lyon street, Rocco Mauro of Plum street and Frank Yorrone of Shamrock street. Police were unable to learn the cause of the fight and the four prisoners were released. The assailants were chased along the nearby railroad tracks, several shots being fired during the pursuit. A child later found a revolver and shot off a piece of a finger.

SOUTH END MAN IS ROBBED ON STREET

Carl A. Hannus, 24, years old and single, of No. 159 West Newton street, South End, was badly beaten and robbed by two young footpads in South Boston early Sunday morning.

Hannus told the police of the City Point police station that he was visiting a family on Bolton street, and after leaving proceeded down Dorchester street.

When he reached Dorchester and Eighth street, he says, he was set upon by two men who, after punching him in the face and stomach, relieved him of $87 and a gold watch.

FREED YOUTH IS REARRESTED AT ONCE

Chester W. Campbell, twenty-one, said to be a member of a well-to-do family, who was released from Elmira, N. Y., penitentiary yesterday, was today turned over to Special Officer Brown of Brighton station, who held an indictment warrant charging larceny of an automobile eighteen months ago from A. T. Hart Company of Commonwealth avenue. Campbell was removed to Charles Street Jail.

500 CASES OF RUM SEIZED ON VESSEL

Providence, July 21.—Five hundred cases of liquor, assorted and rare, and five alleged rum runners were brought to Providence aboard the two-masted fishing schooner "Clara T." seized in lower Narragansett Bay by Federal prohibition agents under Chief Rating Officer Raymond T. Sewall, in company with Boston and Providence inspectors of the United States customs service.

SUBJECTS FAIL 'HIS HIGHNESS'

Labor Department Causes Arrest for Irregularity in Spectacular Entry

Washington, July 21.—Never did the turnkeys of the Third Precinct Police Station think as they shoved hunks of rye bread and chunks of cervelat sausage through the bars of cell five that some day it would be a throne room.

That's what it was. That gentleman, who calls himself the "Emir of Kurdistan," was holding court there because some of the royal subjects of New York failed to answer his telegraphic dictums for bond money.

For a scepter the Emir, who posts whenever police may be is Jay Bonson, Chicago back peddler and London tonsorial greaser, had only the safety razor he carried in his pocket when he was arrested by several bailiffs on a bench on detective headquarters. The emperor had no mameluks at his side with a fan of palm, but he did have his portable shaving brush found in another pocket. He couldn't work a breeze out of it.

TOLD HIS MAP IS WRONG.

His royal highness was arrested at the request of the Department of Labor, which wishes to question him concerning his spectacular arrival recently on the S. S. Homeric.

The emperor (he claims to be emperor and crown prince of Kurdistan as well as Emir), has been sought since he failed to exam the gate at the State Department several days ago.

He called to pay his respects, but was told by the sub secretary that Kurdistan had been erased from the map. After the Emir had deorted in very bad humor it was discovered that the police were looking for him.

Finally they found him, his hip pocket razor and his natty little shaving brush registered at a hotel as H. A. Karnuchid, St. Louis.

HIS SECOND APPEARANCE.

This is the second time the Emir has kicked up a how-do-you-do in the capitol. In 1922 he succeeded in getting into the White House, where he brought the charming "Princess Fatima." The Princess wore a diamond in her nose at the time, but before she left the United States it was taken from her to pay for the bacon and eggs she had consumed while enjoying the hospitality of America.

FEDERALS OPEN ATTACK ON SAO PAULO

Buenos Aires, July 21 (A.P.)—The Federal assault against Sao Paulo, Brazilian metropolis, held by the insurrectionists, may have already begun, according to indications contained in official dispatches from Rio de Janeiro.

A communique issued by the government referred to an airplane reconnaissance for "operations that are now proceeding."

The rebels, numbering approximately 16,000, are said to be confident of the outcome. It is declared the revolutionary forces hold all the strategic points in and about Sao Paulo and also have artillery placed on what are known as the English bluffs, which command the roads leading to the city.

While batches of wounded men have been arriving in Santos, advices corroborate the indications contained in the official communication that there was no general fighting last week.

The postponement of the assault on the city by the government troops is said to have been influenced by the foreign consuls who protested against the bombardment.

JEWELRY THIEF CAUGHT IN ACT

Chester Sherdian, 17, of No. 83 Francis street, Roxbury, was to be arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of larceny of $500 worth of jewelry from the Robinson Jewelry Co., No. 453 Stuart street.

Robinson was caught by the leg while climbing over a transom of the store. He carried a bag which contained the jewelry.

Athens—Former Premier Kaphandaris today had undertaken to form a new cabinet to succeed that which resigned yesterday after a parliamentary defeat.

NEW DRIVE AGAINST SODA BARS

City Health Department Summons Dispensers to Court in "Clean-Up"

In a drastic campaign to eliminate unsanitary methods of dispensing ice cream and soft drinks, four proprietors of Roxbury shops were summoned to appear in Roxbury Court, and several others are to be called in later.

The charges against them are violation of the food and drug laws and selling adulterated drinks.

The drive was launched by the food division of the Boston Board of Health.

Declaring a preliminary investigation had indicated that the public health was being endangered by the "loose manner in which refreshments were being served, health officials said "drastic action" would be taken immediately in an effort to clean up the menace.

ONLY A BEGINNING.

The summonsing of the four Roxbury men, whose names were not made public, is only the initial step, health officials averred, and will be followed forthwith by the prosecution of nearly a dozen other proprietors of soft drink establishments in Greater Boston.

Revelations brought out through the intensive work of health department inspectors, were characterized as "absolutely amazing" by those in charge of the campaign.

A popular drink known as "the snowball," whose "ingredients" are chipped ice and a flavoring extract, is one of the major points of objection in the eyes of the health authorities.

They said they were principally concerned with this beverage because most of those who partook of it were children, who would be more susceptible than adults to disease germs contained therein.

FIND ICE POLLUTED.

Inspectors have canvassed the city taking samples of the ice with which these so-called "snowballs" are made and in nearly every case, the ice has been found to contain dirt and other extraneous matter.

Danger to the public health, because of this, is almost immeasurable, officials say.

According to the health department, the ordinary ice employed in connection with the "snowball" is supposed to be used only for refrigerating purposes, and is not pure enough to permit its use for public consumption without great danger to the health of imbibers.

Strangely enough, investigation has shown that popularity of the "snowball" is limited almost entirely to the South End, where it is displayed in huge quantities from pedlars' carts.

The pedlars operate under a license issued them by the State director of standards.

TO BAR "SNOWBALL."

Municipal health officials admitted there was no law giving them the authority to prohibit the sale of the "snowball."

While they said legislative action should be started, or a city ordinance passed to take care of the matter in the proper manner, health officials declared they were looking to other means for putting the ban on the "snowball."

Inspection of soda fountains in Greater Boston, conducted as part of the big campaign, also has resulted in startling disclosures concerning lack of sanitation.

Even at several of the more popular fountains, where the business is tremendous, these adverse conditions existed to such a degree as to form a tangible menace to the public health, officials stated.

MAN SHOT AS RESULT OF POTENT CIDER

Chicago July 21.—Potent cider served at the annual picnic of the grocery clerks may have confused Frank Koenig, one of the merrymakers. Returning home, Koenig went up on the back porch of what he believed was his uncle's house and disrobed.

A window went up and a gruff voice said:

"Get away or I'll shoot." A shot followed. The bullet hit Koenig's right arm.

HELEN WILLS AND VIN RICHARDS SCORE TENNIS VICTORIES

U. S. STARS TAKE NET CROWNS

Colombes, France, July 21 (By A.P.)—The two young American tennis stars, Miss Helen Wills and Vincent Richards, captured the Olympic singles rounds and clinched another brilliant international team triumph for the United States.

Miss Wills, playing with the calm and steady assurance which marked her victorious progress all week, decisively vanquished Miss Eveleine Vaisels, a French girl of Greek parentage, in the women's final, 6—2, 6—0, but Richards was forced to battle through a gruelling five-set match under a scalding sun to take the measure of his young French rival, Henri Cochet, 6—4, 3—6, 7—5, 6—2, for the men's title.

A crowd of more than 5,000, sweltering under the torrid heat, was stirred to a high pitch of enthusiasm by the two France-American contests. While the sympathies naturally were with the losers, the spectators, with a few scattered exceptions, gave applause to the youthful contestants impartially, and cheered the Americans enthusiastically when the final points were won and lost in each match.

TWO CROWNS FOR HELEN.

The double victory, marking the greatest international triumphs yet gained, gave the United States its third straight Olympic tennis championship and the points which made victory for the American team certain.

It was the second crown for Miss Wills, who won with Mrs. George W. Wightman in the final of the women's doubles yesterday, while America is assured of a fourth title and has a chance to make a clean sweep of all five by the close of the tournament tomorrow.

The two mixed doubles teams, Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup and Richards, Mrs. Wightman and R. Norris Williams, 2d, emerged victorious from the semi-finals this afternoon and will stage an all-American battle for the title tomorrow, while Richards and Frances T. Hunter will seek the men's doubles honors against the French stars, Cochet and J. Brugnon.

By today's achievement the United States now has 29 points, which, with the assurance of at least 20 more tomorrow, is a total sufficient to eclipse that of any rival. France, losing the nearest with 20 points, and Great Britain next with 15.

MEDFORD C. C. PLAYS MALDEN NINE TONIGHT

The unbeaten Medford City Club nine, which claims the semi-pro championship of Greater Boston, will swing in action tonight when the Medfordites face the Malden City Club at Ferrywav Green, Malden.

After winning 19 consecutive games Sam Murphy's Medford ball tossers are out to plaster their Malden opponents who hope to break the winning habit of the invaders.

With such athletes as Webber Knox, Eddie Merton, "Nubbie" Mander, Bill Leary and "Artie" Murray, Medford is represented by one of the strongest nines in semi-pro ranks.

40 CYCLISTS RACE AT REVERE WEDNESDAY

With the bike racing season more than half over, Manager Bruier of the Revere track looks from this on to stage a championship or one of the paced classics in connection with the regular card of racing.

For Wednesday night, Nat has listed the New England professional sprint championship. Five heats, a heat for riders failing to qualify and a one-mile final is the lineup for the title. At present about 40 cyclists are competing in the motor-pacing class at the Revere bowl. It is the largest field of pros in the history of the local oval, and with all scattered for the championship, the title will not be gained before sprinkling is indulged in.

Nashua Wins, 1-0

Lowell, July 21.—In the second time this season, McCarthy of the Nashua team pitched a no-hit, 1-0 game at Sliesla's expense. He had Sliesla feeding out of his hand, and incidentally he received excellent support. The only run of the game was a homer by Ryan in the seventh inning.

CARPENTIER-TUNNEY AWAIT GONG

By SID MERCER

The Soldier of France and the Soldier of America are almost ready to come to grips.

Today Georges Carpentier and Gene Tunney are close to the light-heavyweight championship limit and rapidly nearing the peak of fighting form. They meet next Thursday night at the Polo Grounds in the final big boxing spectacle of the season there, and from present indications will settle their argument before 50,000 persons.

Their training has now become hard work. However, the anxiousness are offset by camp surroundings calculated to bring both men into the ring next week physically and mentally fit.

Carpentier sticks close to Camp Contact now. This is another name for Jack Curley's beautiful home in Great Neck. It is only a few miles from the farmhouse near Manhasset where the Frenchman prepared for Dempsey three years ago. Carpentier is pretty well known along the north shore of Long Island now, and many of his friends from that section will cheer him from ringside seats next Thursday night.

Tunney is sequestered in a spot not far from the beaten path that leads from Atlantic Highlands down the Jersey coast. His camp is pitched on the banks of the Shrewsbury River, not far from Fairhaven. It is a truly rural picture that greets the American champion's eyes each morning and he loves it so well that he practically lives there the year around.

Ty Cobb May Smash Record of 200 Hits a Year

Detroit, July 21 (A.P.)—Ty Cobb, the Detroit manager, has accumulated more individual records than any player who has performed in the major leagues and is still at it. During 19 years in the American League Cobb carved his name as one of the immortals of baseball and when he surpassed Hans Wagner's record of having batted .300 or better for 17 consecutive seasons, Cobb's mark now is 18. Rite more was expected of the Georgia Peach.

The wear and tear of 19 campaigns in the major leagues is supposed to slow up a player beyond the point of record-breaking ability; in fact, the majority of players disappear from the big leagues long before that time. With all the laurels he has won and making new statistical records in every game this season, Cobb is on his way to another mark that has been on the books for several years—the consecutive years in which a player has made 200 or more hits in a season.

Short Sports of All Sorts

Binghamtown, N. Y., July 20.—The reason Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, and John H. Farrell, secretary of the National Baseball Association, left a New York-Pennsylvania League game here so early Thursday afternoon was explained today. They had an engagement with a justice of the peace in the village of Whitney Point, near here, and he did leave their hosts, the American Legion Posts, to which own the triple cities franchise, to keep it.

It appears that the commissioner and Mr. Farrell were stopped by a speed cop in Whitney Point when they were hastening to reach the game on time. The officer refused to be impressed by the identity of the motorists and ordered them to report in court later in the day.

They were on hand when Justice of Peace David Maxwell convened court, but there were no formalities, not even a fine, when the justice learned who was before him.

Babe Adams Resting Up for Another Try in Big Show

Bethany, Mo., July 21.—Babe Adams, grand old veteran of the Pittsburgh National League Club, is still hopeful that he may be able to resume his baseball career. The Babe returned to his home here following his failure on the mound when with tears in his eyes he walked out of the box during a game and announced to his teammates that he was through. It is the Babe's belief, which is shared by the Pittsburgh Club, that a rest may restore Adams' ability.

The veteran pitcher will be allowed his own time in coming around. In a few weeks he expects to rejoin the Pirates and if he finds that he can no longer keep up with the big show he will ask for his unconditional release.

Adams is optimistic and voices the opinion that he has not yet lost his usefulness on the diamond.

ST. JAMES HIGH GRID SEEK TO FILL DATES

Edsel Carroll, coach of St. James Parochial High School, today issued a challenge open to any high school team in New England for games October 11 and 18 and November 1. These three dates have not been filled on the Blue and White schedule.

AMERICANS ARE WINNERS IN BOXING

Paris, July 21 (By A.P.)—The United States won the boxing championship of the Olympic games. During the final battles the big crowd in the Velodrome d'Hiver rose to a high pitch of excitement which at one time assumed the proportions of a riot.

The boxers from the United States won only two of the eight championships—Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles, taking the flyweight event, and Jack Fields, Los Angeles, winning the featherweight class. But the Americans piled up points for second and third places which gave them in the aggregate a total of 28 points and the championship. Great Britain, which also won two championship bouts, finished in second place with 20 points.

Denmark lost her chance for the championship when the Petersen brothers in the lightweight and heavyweight classes, met with defeat in the finals and had to be satisfied with 20 points and third place. Argentina, both of whose finalists won—Copello in the lightweight class and Mendez in the welterweight division—finished fourth with 18 points.

The other score points in the competition was as follows: Belgium 17, Norway 14, France and Canada each 7, Italy 6 and Sweden and Holland 3 each.

The United States and Great Britain were the only nations to take as many as two of the final honors, the other classes being distributed among South Africa, Denmark, Belgium and Norway. A majority of the bouts were keenly contested. Several resulted in close decisions, which at times met with noisy disapproval.

TEDESCO TROPHY NET PLAY STARTS JULY 26

The Fifth Annual North Shore championship for the coveted Tedesco Trophy Cup will open Saturday, July 26, at the Tedesco Club. Play will continue throughout the next week, closing August 2.

The men's singles, doubles, and women's singles will get underway on Saturday, but the women's doubles will not begin until Monday. The cup, which bears the name of J. W. Foster, E. R. Hastings, N. W. Niles, and Josiah Wheelwright, must be won three times for permanent possession. Entrance fee in singles is $2, in doubles $4.

Speed Stars All Set for Readville Races

JIMMIE Murphy, world's champion, is expected to make his first appearance in New England at the Readville auto races next month. Benny Hill of Indianapolis and Peter de Palo of Los Angeles are also expected to be here. The latter is a nephew of the great De Palma.

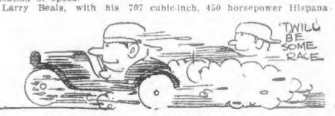
Then there will be Larry Beals, a local driver, who was the sensation of last year's meet. He is the boy who forced the great De Palma all the way. Over a dozen other star drivers will try to bring home the purses.

Jack LeCain, former race driver, a local man, is director of the big race, backed by prominent Boston business men.

There will be a number of cars equipped with super-chargers—this wonderful secret of speed and power.

Murphy's new $25,000 front-wheel-drive job, equipped fith supercharger, will give Boston and New England the first chance to see this sensation of speed.

Larry Beals, with his 707 cubic-inch, 450 horsepower Hispana



Squaza undoubtedly will push Murphy to world's records, if not beating him, as this is the largest speed car on the dirt tracks today.

An open event for New England entrants will be put on to give drivers a chance to compete and not be swamped by the speedway stars named above.

Trials will be held two days before the race and drivers will have to negotiate the full lap under sixty to qualify. This is to keep unnecessary slow machines off the track the day of the race.

YOU radio fans probably will smile a bit at my WIW, and wonder just what I am going to say on what you know my favorite topic to be: proper motor lubrication. After all, as the Veteran Motorist, I am privileged to discuss WIW, or What is What in motor lubrication.

I have been driving a car for over 20 years and have gone through the experiences which befall most of us. I have made my mistakes, too. But since Socony Motor Oil came on the market, I have stopped worrying about lubrication. Furthermore, I have stopped paying excessive repair bills. I used to be one of those chaps who thought it economical to save 10c on the gallon, and then perhaps pay $140.00 three months later "for repairs and overhauling." I do not do it any more. Since then I've filled up on Socony Motor Oil and forgotten my worries and saved money. That's why I insist upon broadcasting a good thing. That's why I am never weary of proclaiming that Socony is WIW in motor oils.

BONUS BUREAU BUSY, BUT ANSWERS ALL QUESTIONS

There isn't a reason in the world why veterans of the World War should be unable to make out his adjusted compensation application.

The questions that trouble are easily answered by the American-Advertiser's Soldiers' Friend Bureau at this office.

It isn't even necessary for the busy ex-soldier to make a personal visit, although veteran visitors are always welcome.

Just pen a few lines, drop them into the nearest mail box, and Uncle Sam will see that they are delivered to the staff of experts at the Soldiers' Friend Bureau conducted by the American and Advertiser.

A letter will save any waiting and will result in obtaining just as complete advice as would a visit.

Here are a few of the letters and answers:

MRS. F. C. A., Malden.

Q.—Please advise me how to find out where my husband, who died February 1, 1923, served during the World War. He served with the marine laying fleet off the coast of Scotland during the entire period of the war.

A.—It is not necessary for you to find out the exact places and the dates of your husband's service during the war. All that is required is that you answer the questions on the application to the best of your ability. When the completed application is received in Washington, the service records of your late husband will be located there, and the proper credit given you as the veteran's widow. Your application must be accompanied by the death certificate of your husband, if he did not die while in active service.

MRS. A. M. B., Pawtucket, R. I.

Q.—My boy was killed in action 29november 6, 1918. He enlisted June 8, 1917, and served in June 13, 1918, in this country, then left for overseas June 12, 1918, and served until the day he was killed. Am I entitled to the bonus, and, if so, how much money will be paid to me?

A.—If at the time of your son's death you were dependent upon him for support, you will be entitled to make application for the bonus, provided he left no unmarried widow or children under eighteen years of age. From the length of service performed by your son up to the time of his death you will be entitled to a total credit of $552, which will be paid to you in ten equal quarterly instalments, the first payment will be paid to you about March 1, 1925.

A. J. B., Prout's Neck, Me.

Q.—I enlisted April 23, 1917, at the age of sixteen, serving there July 28, 1919, my service overseas being from July 28, 1918, to December 1, 1918. What will be the amount of my policy?

A.—You will be entitled to the maximum sum of $625 for both home and overseas service. When this sum is turned into a twenty-year paid-up insurance policy, it will have a face value of about $1,569.

R. R. R., Roxbury.

Q.—I enlisted in the Navy October 25, 1917, and went overseas July 1, 1918, and was discharged June 14, 1919. How much will I be entitled to at the end of twenty years?

A.—If you were discharged under honorable conditions you will be entitled to a credit of $1 a day for each day of home service after deducting the first sixty days and $1.25 a day for each day of overseas service. From your length of service you will be entitled to receive a credit of about $615, which, when turned into a twenty-year paid-up insurance policy, will have a face value of about $1,569.

M. F. T., Somerville.

Q.—I served in the Navy from May 12, 1908, and received honorable discharges during those years. However, I received a bad conduct discharge within a week of August 20, 1923. Will I receive the bonus?

A.—The bonus law provides that a veteran is not entitled to make application for the bonus if while a member of the military or naval forces of the United States at any time between April 5, 1917, and before November 12, 1918, and thereafter, he was separated from such forces under other than honorable conditions. Whether this means that under the circumstances of your case you will be barred is a question which will be determined after you have filed your application.

J. S., Narragansett Pier, R. I.

Q.—I applied at the postoffice in my town for a bonus blank, but I could not get one. The postmaster told me he didn't think he would be supplied with them. Please send me one and also tell me about how much my bonus will be for service during the entire period of the war.

A.—A bonus application is being mailed to you today with an instruction sheet for filling it out. The maximum credit provided by the bonus law is $500 for all home service and $625 for all overseas service. This sum when multiplied by 2½ will give the approximate face value of the Insurance Certificate which will be issued to you.

MRS. C. A. R., NEWPORT, R. I.

Q.—During the World War my husband married a woman without divorcing me. He made his allotment to her, and I stopped her from getting anything and I got it. I have one child. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A.—If your husband is still living he will be the only person eligible to make application for the bonus. If he is dead, and you have not remarried, you will be entitled to make application. If you have remarried since the death of your husband, then his children under the age of 18 years will be the next in line to make application.

A. L. R., PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

Q.—Please let me know if a soldier who served in the World War under the English flag is entitled to the bonus?

A.—The benefits of the bonus law are extended only to veterans of the World War who were members of the Naval or Military forces of the United States.

R. H. L., GILMAN, VT.

Q.—I am a veteran who served during the War and received an honorable discharge. Am I entitled to the bonus, and if so where can I get a blank?

A.—You are eligible to make application for the bonus. Official blank applications may now be obtained from any American Legion post, postoffice or any other veterans' organization. If you are unable to obtain a blank in your town, write to us again and one will be sent to you.

L. W. D., GILMAN, VT.

Q.—Am I entitled to the bonus for services from June 7, 1917, to April, 19197 I served nineteen months overseas. Where can I get a blank?

Fay Praises American Life Guard Campaign

The pitiful drowning of John Paul Fay, nine years old, of Dorchester, caused the Boston American to open the present campaign, which had been under consideration for a long time. Young Fay lost his life at Carson Beach. The city guards were not sufficient to cover the whole district. The following letter is from the father of the boy, Thomas J. Fay, of No. 196 Boston street:

Boston American:

Gentlemen: In regard to your article in the Boston American on July 10, regarding conditions at Carson Beach, I would like to thank you for the publicity, as it may be the means of saving other parents the bereavement which I have suffered in the loss of my beloved son, J. Paul Fay, by drowning.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) THOMAS J. FAY.

BEACH TRIP FOR MOTHERS AND TOTS TOMORROW

Tomorrow is the second big day of the Summer for Boston's mothers and kiddies who find it hard to take a sail down the bay to Nantasket. On that day the Boston American's second Nantasket outing for mothers and children will be held.

ALL TICKETS GONE.

Owing to the fact that 9,000 mothers and children appeared at the office of the Boston American Saturday with coupons the American gave out all the tickets available for the only three remaining Nantasket trips for this season. All the tickets for the trips on July 29 and August 4 were given out. There are no more, so there will be no more coupons printed in the American this season.

To all holders of tickets be sure and read the date on your tickets and come to the boat on that date only. To those who did not receive tickets we trust that you will be more fortunate next season.

Tomorrow 3,500 joyful Boston mothers and children will board a steamer for Nantasket and the biggest day of their Summer will be under way. There will be swimming, ice cream, pure milk, cake and the amusements of Paragon Park as well as the sail. And as an added attraction Bozo Snyder, clown extraordinary, will be on hand to clown for the youngsters. Bozo will sail down on one boat and back on another and will clown at Nantasket until every youngster has had a barrel of fun.

EATS AND AMUSEMENTS.

And don't forget to take your own bathing suits along. Manager Sackin of the Sagamore bath house will provide lockers and bath houses but you must take your own suit if you want to go in the water for a swim. There will be 3,500 bricks of Delmonico ice cream furnished by Howard J. Bushway of the Bushways Ice Cream Company. There will be 3,500 bottles of pasteurized milk furnished by Frances J. Cummings of the Cummings Milk Company and Berwick Cake Company will furnish 3,500 slices of fresh baked Berwick cake. Daddy Frank Archer of the Moxie Company will have surprises for all. And Joe Stone of Paragon Park will see to it that all have a good time at his place of amusement. What could be better?

Now for those who missed out on this trip. Remember that there will be another trip next week. Another on Tuesday, July 29, and the last trip of the season on Tuesday, August 5th.

Owing to the fact that last Saturday morning many mothers were late and a crowd larger than the capacity of the Nantasket boat gathered, some of the unused holders were given tickets for the third outing instead of the second. Examine your tickets, mothers. If they read July 22 you know you will take the trip tomorrow. If they read July 29, you will know that you will go on the third trip a week from next Tuesday.

No More Tickets for the Mothers' Free Outings

There are NO MORE tickets for the Mothers' and Children's Nantasket outings.

Those who have tickets reading July 22 must use these tickets tomorrow. Those having tickets reading July 29 must go on that date only. Those having tickets dated August 4 must use them only on that date. The tickets will not be good on any date other than that stamped on ticket.

On each of these dates first boat leaves Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company wharf on Atlantic avenue at 9:15 each Tuesday morning. Returning, it will leave Nantasket at 3:30 p. m.

The second boat leaves the Atlantic avenue wharf at 10:45 the same morning, and returning leaves Nantasket at 4:30 in the afternoon.

Be sure and read your ticket.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

TRAFFIC is getting so serious in the large city, in fact it is now with an automobile fatality about every day, that it has to go down on Thursday to find it does to park.

THE average motorist needs two machines. One for driving and one for parking.

IN Detroit the streets are so crowded that if you buy a car on the installment plan, the second payment is due by the time you get home.

MOST automobile companies are glad to give you a check day's guarantee because it doesn't cost them anything. If something goes wrong with the machine it takes you at least three months to get back to the place where you bought it.

A GUY drove up to a Ford agency the other day with a 1923 flivver and wanted the free service that they promised him. He said he would have been back sooner only he's been five years trying to find a place to park in front of their salesroom.

WHEN he went inside he found that the agency had gone out of business three years ago.

BUT they were very courteous and tried to sell him a washing machine.

TRAFFIC is really terrible. A man buys a 1924 car today and the 1925 models are out before he can get home.

ONE business man makes it a practice of driving down town at three o'clock in the morning so that he can get his car parked by nine.

WHEN he quits work at six, the machines are jammed so tightly around him that he can't get out. He has to take the trolley home and come back for his automobile at midnight.

Will ..... the line of ..... in the bath harm my health?

MRS. M. J.

I do not believe that the article which you mention would do you both will be harmful to your health, but I think that its continued use will in time be apt to cause a skin eruption. On the other hand, as a rule, I do not think it will accomplish its purpose without debilitating you.

Please tell me the cause of curvature of the clothes, a boy 14 years of age.

MRS. M. N. B. CRAWFORD.

You ask a very difficult question, as there are many causes for curvature of the spine, both congenital and acquired. I am unable to state the causes. How long it would take to cure the condition depends wholly upon the underlying cause.

Pleads for Aged Couple

Editor Helping Hand:

As my little girl has grown out of all her clothes, I have some very nice ones to fit girls from 10-12 that I will send to some needy mother's child, if she address. Now I ask for a worthy old couple who are in real hard circumstances in their seventies. He has been sick all Winter and still laid up with rheumatism and can hardly move. He needs underwear, size 38; shirts, size 16; shoes, size 9 or 10. The lady wears size 46 or 48 dresses and No. 5-wide width shoes. Now this old couple has no means of support. Now if you have anyone in your list with linings to fit these people, if sent to me, I will gladly see they get them.

MRS. E. M. C.

Thank you. We are sending you the address of Mrs. D., who is the mother of seven small children and who has been in ill-health for over a year. The clothes will fit two of her girls. We will communicate with you as soon as we get replies regarding the aged couple you mention.

Other Offers

The editor wishes to express her appreciation to the following people for kindly proffered offers of assistance to those in need. They have been sent the addresses for which they asked:

JAPS' NAVY AHEAD OF OURS, SAYS McKEAN

San Francisco, July 21.—Japan is ahead of the United States in preparedness for naval warefare, according to Rear Admiral Josiah S. McKean, commandant of the Mare Island Navy Yard. "Taking every phase of naval warfare into consideration the United States navy is below the 5–5–3 ration granted by the recent international agreement, and is lagging behind," Admiral McKean declared. "At present the United States navy in all branches is operating on a 5—2½—3 basis."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney,
Boston Health Commissioner

MEASLES are often made light of by the unthinking. Many mothers let their children take them, saying it is better to get the disease over with in childhood.

But measles is really a serious illness and may lead to other more dangerous ailments.

Dr. Mahoney.

Kidney diseases and various nervous affections have been traced to previous attacks of measles.

Dr. H. W. Hill of the Minnesota Public Health Association says that probably 2 out of 3 American children are subjected to this to deal with measles. Of 100 of them die, that 100,000 of them suffer from after effects of the disease and, finally, that there are more deaths now from measles than from smallpox.

Here are a few general directions:

If your child has sudden loss of appetite, fever, headache, red and watery eyes, sensitiveness to light, or running nose, is constipated, nervous and irritable, the probability is that he is coming down with the measles. This probability being increased, of course, if there is measles in the neighborhood.

It is safe to act upon this theory without waiting a few days for the rash to appear on the skin, although you may find it at this early stage as red or white spots in the throat.

Put the child with his books, clothing, toys and general belongings into a room by himself and prevent all communication between him and other children.

Call your physician at once.

As soon as he has had time to make a diagnosis of measles, report the case to the health office and don't fail to placard your house. It will greatly help you.

Keep your child in until not only the rash is gone but his eyes, ears, nose and throat are free from irritation—a point to be decided by your physician.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Is bran a grain? My girl has a tendency of the heart and may be has an irregular pulse. Will they injure her? Her husband has a terrible itch between the toes. What can I do?

MRS. E. G., DORCHESTER.

Bran is a grain. Your children may or may not have heart conditions dependent upon the cause. Sea bath and salt pp for blood improving the condition of your husband's feet. I think that you had better go to a hospital and have a thorough physical examination.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

New high prices for the year for wheat and corn and oats, new high prices for flour, new high prices for pigs, higher prices for cotton, higher prices for lard—all these were registered within the last week. There were three advances for each decline in wholesale commodity prices, a record for matched in months.

New high prices for the year were likewise reached on the New York Stock Exchange by representative stocks. Average prices for bonds reached a new peak.

Wall Street enjoyed a return of million-share days.

* * *

Whereas certain grains touched the highest levels in several years, time money and commercial paper rates sank to the lowest level in several years. The ratio of interest again declared by shares to that by stocks, good, bad and indifferent. The financial world read into this ignorance that the stamp placed by the body having sole authority over interstate railway rates.

* * *

Second thoughts on the presidential nominations convinced financial and business leaders that no alarm need be felt over the coming election. That Coolidge chances will be elected is the opinion now very strongly held in those circles that exercise most influence over security markets and commodity exchanges.

* * *

Although still hopeful, powerful financial interests here are watching events at the political convention in London with intense interest and, it might be added, with some concern. The report is that American interests regard this as an occasion of supreme moment to the whole world. Anxious is pointed out, for the reason, for it is felt here that if the deadlock be not broken now the whole European and world trade outlook will become extremely grave.

It can be safely assumed that both Germany and France have received satisfactory intimations from this side of the Atlantic that if the Dawes plan be not accepted and put into operation share of the big loan forming part of the reconstruction program of the Commission will be taken care of. The crux of the whole matter is this:

France, refusing to forget history, is determined to give up all say in dealing when Germany shall be declared in default if everything does not go according to schedule. France is unwilling to hand over this power to any non-French individual, firm or group unbiased American business executive.

Realization of what a rapture would probably be set up with American financiers believe, paves France as well as Britain and Germany to adopt a conciliatory spirit which would bring disaster to the present momentous effort to find a harmonious way out.

During the last week or two one has heard in talking with business men of modest improvement in orders. This applies to some of the industries which have been dull so.

One of the largest shoe manufacturers in the country said on Friday that business in his plants had been running from 80 to 90 per cent of last year's output, but he anticipated that shortly it would be running 100 per cent. "Our orders look better," he declared.

The fact is that we are getting through the traditionally dull summer season more conspicuously than in Mr. Waterbury, director of American Telephone.

ISLAND CREEK COAL SPURTS 8 POINTS

Island Creek Coal spurted 8 points and was the feature of trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today, prices reflecting record production and anticipation of higher prices for soft coal.

Coppers were again lively and higher, but most price changes were fractional gains.

In New York stock prices pointed upward, although initial advances were limited to fractions, with the exception of Willys-Overland, preferred, which gained a point.

Oil and copper shares manifested enough strength and movements of the low-priced rail issues again reflected a spirited demand.

The advance gathered momentum as trading progressed. Investment calls developed fresh strength, with Atchison, New York Central and Pacific Pacific mounting to the year's highest levels.

Various specialties also forged ahead, with Publishing du Pont, National Biscuit and West Penn Power, up 2 to 4½ points. Louisville & Nashville gained 3 points and scores of a point or so were scored by some of the less prized rails, copper issues and other speculative favorites.

Rock Island 7 per cent. preferred and Utah and Kennecott coppers rose to 1924 top figures.

HOOVER CALLS BUILDING DAYS TOO SHORT

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

From Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover I have an interesting plan for mitigating seasonal ups and downs in the construction industry, of stabilizing employment in the building trades and lowering costs of production and building.

Herbert Hoover

Secretary Hoover would have the building season extended in the United States to include the winter months.

Secretary's Hoover's statement based on, and supplemental to, the report and recommendations of the committee on Seasonal Operation in the Construction Industries, appointed by him at a outgrowth of the President's Conference of Unemployment, called in 1921, urges elimination of wastes caused by seasonal idleness through development of information as to probable future demands for labor and materials and the development of the habit of scheduling construction and repair work with reference to that demand.

He reiterates the committee's finding that "the cycle rather than bad weather is responsible for building trades workers in most American cities working less than three-quarters of the year.

"BALANCE WHEEL."

Calling construction the balance wheel of American industry, and placing the value of yearly construction in the United States at more than five billion dollars and the number of workers engaged in building and manufacturing industries allied to building at mounting into the millions.

Secretary Hoover declared activity in construction bears a close relation to general industrial conditions and that, regardless of the ebb and flow in demand for construction seasonally to a large degree affects unemployment.

In his foreword to the report, Secretary Hoover said:

"The need to eliminate the wastes of seasonal idleness has been brought forcibly to the attention of the construction industry by the periodic demand for unemployment relief in the form of high labor costs and the failure of the building trades to attract young men to the industry, constituting a remedy he declares. "Lengthening the building season will mean greater production from existing facilities, lower costs of the building trades and will also go far to attract capable apprentices."

ORGANIZED EFFORT.

Secretary Hoover outlined the development of seasonal instability to mean, stating that: "If building fails off, there is bound to be a shrinkage in many other lines of industry, constituting a permanent lessening of purchasing power of employees and further depression."

He urged the need of organized community effort by representatives of the construction industries, the professions concerned and the public to find the facts as to local handicaps, peaks and depressions of employment and kinds of construction, and for elimination of wasteful customs. He urged public works, especially well adapted for seasonal use with reference to seasonal as well as cyclical conditions, continuing that efforts to encourage the advance planning of public works to serve support of the public, legislators and public officials.

BROOKMIRE SEES LOWER PRICES

Viewing prices as a whole their probable activity during the Summer months will be that of slow decline from present levels, on the basis of present history, however, the bulk of these declines will take place in the prices of consumer goods, says Brookmire Economic Service. "There is a well-defined lag between the movements of producers' prices and those of consumption goods.

"Taking this consideration the drastic decline in production volumes over the last few months and the financial position in the hands of primary commodities, the indications are that further declines in this field will be small, and that during the Summer months the tendency will be toward a moderate downward readjustment rather than to any pronounced slump.

As production slows down, unemployment necessarily increases. This unemployment is the result of weakness in primary markets and of curtailment in production, but in retail trade it acts as a cause of weakness. As purchasing power in industrial centres is reduced, its effects are passed along to the retail trade, with diminished buying and in consequent weakness in the prices of consumer goods. This is the reason why the movements of consumer prices tends uniformly to lag behind producers' prices.

This opinion service holds that the bulk of the price declines which will be seen during the next two or three months will be in consumers' goods. In this period prices in industrial circles will be very drastic in their extent. While unemployment generally has been increasing over the last three or four months, there has not occurred any such radical reduction of working forces as came in the depression of 1920 and 1921. With the probabilities pointing to a relatively short downturn, there is no likelihood that the 1921 unemployment conditions will be repeated this year. Moreover, at the present time, unlike the 1921 period, the purchasing population is generally the condition, and promises to show more active buying in the coming months. Retail stocks are now in the last action of prices during the Summer will be:

1—A readjustment in the prices of producers' goods tending to bring the average of that class somewhat lower than at the present time.

2—Fairly drastic declines in consumers' goods prices, the decline being characterized more by its widespread nature than by the extent of the decrease.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC SLIGHTLY REDUCED

Freight traffic in the first five months in 1924 was nearly 8 per cent. below that for the corresponding period last year, according to the Bureau of Railway Economics.

Plays New Role

LOIS WILSON

Screen star, appearing in "Another Scandal," at Fenway Theatre.

Travel Briefs

By THE AMERICAN TOURIST.

"Another Scandal" proved last night that—another scandal makes a good subject for a popular novel and passed along to film fans with much color and a wide range of action.

Miss Wilson is one, that of a young matron who had just become a mother, pinpoint in that the scandal that is largely centered with another woman for the possession of her husband. That, of later, is the theme of the story run although the complications were not too desperate to cause much anxiety. It was not long, however, before another, with the chief roles falling into good hands, notably Holmes Herbert, who handled fair misunderstood husband in fine fashion, and Flora Le Breton, a dainty English girl of rare beauty to introduced a new and rather fetching brand of intensive vamping. She sprinkled much spice into the proceedings and held your eye in pleasant occupation.

GOOD SURROUNDING BILL.

The surrounding program was good, headed by a pair of Russakoff's Russian Dancers with English names—Evelyn Hoonn and John Powers—who may have been in Russian, but in short order behalf it may be said would look as good in any language. There was Wynn and Rolph C. Bruce Wilderness tale, "The Home maker," a film novelty of quality; Rosario Bourdon, soprano of high voice; the Fenway orchestra in its usual symphonic way, and Cal Carlton, who always manages to do spirited things with the big Fenway organ.

"LET'S GO" COMES TO GAYETY FOR A RUN

"Let Go," a burlesque that is characterized by the snap indicated in its name will be presented at the Gayety Theatre today for an indefinite run.

Making no attempt to build a show around a theme, the cast puts forth a well-rounded a musical and dancing production of twelve scenes.

Among the performers in the company are Dorothy King, a comedian; Helen Flynn, contortionist dancer; the Gellis Brothers, eccentric dancers; Scott Thompson's Colored Jazz Bandsmen, Nan Palon and Alice Lawlor, featured singers and Clarence Kane, the Four Dancing Madcaps and James E. Morton and family.

19 KILLED IN AUTO TOLL FOR THE WEEK

Nine children and ten adults were killed as a result of automobile accidents in this State during the past week, according to figures given out today by the office of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin. The number of fatalities was still below the number for the previous week.

Discussing violations of the automobile laws the registrar said:

"The number of convictions for operating under the influence of liquor this week was 37, as against 43 last week. The number of licenses and registrations suspended or revoked was 401, 115 more than the week before."

BAD MEN IN NAVY OFTEN REFORM

Washington, July 21.—"Bad Eggs" in the navy often reform under considerate treatment and make good, a Navy Department report shows.

Records of 2,274 enlisted men on probation reveal that 546 were given dishonorable discharges, 27.1 per cent. of the total. Bad conduct discharges numbered 420, or 17.7 per cent. Good discharges went to 180, and ordinary discharges to 1,128, or 74.8 per cent. Three hundred and eleven were deserters, or 8.6 per cent.

STRONG FILM IS BEING SHOWN AT FENWAY

"Another Scandal," With Lois Wilson, One Intrigue After Another

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

GOOD pictures appear to be drifting more and more into weird domestic entanglements, with misunderstood heroes and foolish women keeping interest alive through the adroit manipulations of hard working dramatists.

All of which could be said truthfully of the screen art at the Fenway on Saturday with Cosmo Hamilton's "Another Scandal," in which Lois Wilson moved through a highly diverting story and reminded one that the ugly element of aristocracy hangs as gracefully from her pretty shoulders as did the coarser garb of the long haired Journey in "The Covered Wagon."

Colonel Friedsam Makes Encouraging Prediction

He KNOWS Business

Colonel Michael Friedsam sailed for Europe, wearing in his lapel the honorable decoration of the Legion of Honor, conferred upon him by the French government for his services in war. On the dock he told reporters that better times are coming.

Colonel Friedsam's own business, as it happens, has not felt the recent "slight depression" of which some business men complain. In fact, his business has increased as compared with the year before. A prediction of better times better business, is particularly encouraging to business men from a source of such high authority.

They know that Colonel Friedsam is a buyer in every one of the world's great markets to the extent of tens of millions every year, and his business in America enables him to feel the pulse of the spending public instantly. There could be no better judge of business conditions.

Colonel Friedsam's statement is encouraging and useful. What the country needs is optimism, men that are not afraid, and that, understanding conditions, foresee and announce the prosperity and constant improvement to which this country's position entitles it.

The Silent Bells

No Worry Now

The bells of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church, New York, will be silent until Christmas, while the eleven bells are melted down, made over, and five new bells added.

No one worries about that today. Church members will wait patiently for the bells to come back. A few hundred years ago there would have been worry. Church bells were relied upon to keep away lightning, and particularly to drive away the demons of the air. They flew off to the place they came from when they heard the consecrated bells.

And those bells also brought down rain when it was needed, and kept away hailstorms. On an old bell, described by Andrew D. White, former president of Cornell College, is written, "the sound of this bell vanquishes tempests, dispels demons and summons men."

Human beings were perhaps happier when they possessed these simple beliefs.

Light Without Heat

Boats Under Oil

Progress continues, even if Democrats do run around in circles.

A Frenchman, Dussard, has discovered a way to produce light without heat. Fireflies and little sea animals made that discovery long ago. It would mean a great saving for human beings. All heat in light is WASTE.

At the same time Lake, the submarine builder, announces the invention of an "under ice freight boat." Diving below the ice, the freight boats will carry on traffic, uninterrupted by the weather, and incidentally escaping Winter storms in the smooth water below the ice. Think what that will mean to populations on the Great Lakes.

And such a boat might make the best possible vehicle for North Pole exploration. NAVIGATION might be a little difficult, but human ingenuity and the compass would fix that.

League Is Dead, Anyhow

Good Riddance

You are glad that the Democratic party decided to give the League of Nations decent burial, with "Referendum" written on the tombstone. That's some comfort.

The International Federation of League of Nations Societies make it quite clear that if this country were in the League that League would undertake to tell us what we must and must not do in our own territory.

The League, gentlemen, declaring that no nation could interfere with the "rights of travelers of any nationality," taught us something. The League would make it impossible for the United States government to regulate Asiatic immigration disguised as "travel." It is well for California and some other places to remember that when they feel inclined to get sentimental about the League.

The Son of Heaven

And Some Other Items

The young Chinese Emperor, who retains his palace and a large income within the Forbidden City, weary of confinement, like Prince Rasselas, invites strangers to visit him. The Indian poet, Rabindranach Tagore, was one visitor, and there was a Chinese poet in the party. But that won't teach anything to the "Son of Heaven." He ought to invite an American automobile salesman, an American manicure lady, an American politician and a school teacher. They'd teach him something about the real world.

A San Francisco jury gave a girl a verdict for $118,000 for permanent injuries resulting from being struck by a street car. This is said to be the biggest personal injury verdict ever rendered in the United States, but nobody in his right mind would trade his health for any sum of money.

Cologne Cathedral is in danger of collapsing because the sandstone disintegrates, while our cathedrals are in danger of collapsing because rival factions try to pull out the pillars.

Mary Lebar, ninety-nine years old, appeared before the Stroudsburg, Pa., authorities and applied for a fishing license. She was smoking a corncob pipe. The Tobacco Trust should not permit such a terrible warning of the ravages of nicotine to roam at large.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY my daughter as numbers as the leaves of the trees, the dandelions in the front lawn, the weeds of the field, are the Suppressed Desires of a Woman!

For as we have time and space we suppress with her the desire to run our fingers through it a dozen times a day, and after marriage she suppresseth the desire to PULL his hair.

Before marriage she suppresseth her desire to tell him how much she thinketh about him, and after marriage she suppresseth her desire to tell him how much she knoweth about him.

At sixteen she suppresseth her desire to array herself as a vamp in slinking draperies and dangling earrings and a pallid make-up—and at sixty she suppresseth her desire to bob her hair and to wear a scarlet hat and array herself as a flapper.

At twenty she suppresseth her desire to change the color of her hair—and at forty she suppresseth her desire to change her husband.

In childhood she suppresseth her desire to suffer the forbidden lollypop—and in womanhood she suppresseth the desire to smile upon the forbidden man and to steal the forbidden kiss.

Before a man proposeth she suppresseth her desire to TELL him that he inveth her—and after he proposeth she suppresseth her desire to confess how long he hath kept her waiting, and to tell him his arms from sheer exhaustion.

She suppresseth her desire to reveal her heart, to speak her mind, and to tell the truth to any man; for she knoweth that NO man can stand the whole truth from the lips of a woman.

She suppresseth her desire for the fattening sweet, and the Spring onion and the tempting potato, and the whipped cream upon the cake, and for all things that make life sweet and palatable.

She suppresseth her desire to weep when she is sad, to laugh when she is amused, to mope when she is blue and to answer when she is wroth.

For she knoweth that no man can abide a woman's tears, or her scoffing or her laughter, or her moods or her anger, or anything save her smiles and her "yes, dears."

But a man hath NO Suppressed Desires. For, behold, when he desireth anything whatsoever, from food to a kiss, from a job to a wife, from custard pie to self-expression, he goeth To It—and helpeth himself. And, in his bright lexicon, there is no such word as "Don't!"

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

"O" Dreamer, come where life flows by with current swift, leave stagnant waters where you lie content to drift. Forget the visions that you hold so sweet, so dear; forsake your dreams for gleaming gold that men count dear." "For me, no joys like butterflies that woo the rose; no beauty like the glow that dies when Summer goes. For me, no hope that life can hold as brave and from sun rays hidden far and deep in cold and gloom, yet up to greet the light they creep, to bud and bloom." "Oh, Dreamer, while ere youth slips by and age comes on, when all your fleeting fancies fly, your dreams are done." "Ah, then, I shall but closer cling to visions bright, and keep the fragrant hosts of Spring through Winter's night," bright, as withered seeds that dare unfold in dust and night.

My husband hasn't been working for almost four months. He is laid up sick and it is awful hard for me to get along on what little money the city gives me. I have one boy and four girls—boy is 12, and the girls are 5 months, 7, 9 and 13. My 13-year-old girl is very big and can wear a 16 size. I am very much in need of clothes myself. I take size 42. I can use anything that you can send to me because I can make over clothes.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON BE NOT A DOORMAT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

DOORMAT is a term used to signify one who lets others walk on him.

It is a slang expression.

Slang is the product of the vigorous imagination of the people which has not yet been sufficiently shopworn to be accepted by the "best people"—who have no imagination.

The Doormat often takes great pride in his matness.

It is the most dangerous form of pride, which is the pride of humility.

It is reversed egotism, ingrowing vanity.

It calls itself by anyone of fine names, such as Devotion, Loyalty, Self-Sacrifice, Christian Character, and the like.

But it is a subtle form of self-deception. For in reality the Doormat is cruel and noxious.

Does the Doormat ever think, while he is exercising his own grand and noble self-crushing, and thus developing his own moral stature, of the harm he is doing those whom he allows to step on him?

He does not.

Unfortunately there seems to be no provision in our religion for putting a limit to martyrdom.

And a rampant martyr in any family is a fearsome thing.

Many a mother prides herself upon slaving for her daughter. She washes the dishes while Mamie plays the piano. She dresses dowdy while Mamie goes forth even as Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed.

She chaps her hands at the washboard, breaks her nails moving the furniture and roughens her fingers sewing, while Mamie seeks the manicure.

She lives the life of a scullion and chambermaid in order that Mamie may flit from flower to flower.

And she is happy, and Mamie is miserable.

She is full of patience, gentleness and goodness, in order that she may fill her precious lammy with impatience, selfishness, callousness and extravagance.

In all this, mother veritably thinks she is doing God's service.

Is she?

Is it God's service to guard a child from the blessing of work, when without toil not one soul in a hundred can escape ruin?

No element of happiness is more essential than self discipline; is it any mercy to deprive the young of that, and to feed them daily on the poison of self-indulgence?

Here's a topic for mother's meditation; the utter Selfishness of utter Unselfishness.

The very first thing any human being needs to learn is that only by an intelligent regard for one's self, only by keeping one's self as strong, healthy, cheerful and self-respecting as possible, can one be of any real service to others.

You can't love your neighbor as yourself helpfully unless you love yourself understandingly.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON LINCOLN AND EUCLID

By Garrett P. Serviss

IT MAY be an inducement to others to devote a little extra attention to elementary mathematical studies of Abraham Lincoln's experience with Euclid's geometry is recalled. Lincoln was one of the most convincing reasoners that ever addressed an audience or a court or expressed his views in a State paper.

How he himself believed that he arrived at his acknowledged preeminence in that respect is best told in his own words, addressed to a New England clergyman, who interviewed him in a railroad train after his triumphant speech in Cooper Institute Hall, in 1860.

"Your question," said Mr. Lincoln, when the interviewer asked for his profession, "reminds me of a bit of education I had which I am bound in honesty to mention. In the course of my law reading I one constantly upon the word 'demonstrate.' I thought at first that I understood its meaning, but soon became satisfied that I did not.

"I said to myself, 'What do I do when I demonstrate more than when I reason or prove? How does demonstration differ from any other proof?' I consulted Webster's Dictionary. That told of 'certain proof,' 'proof beyond the possibility of doubt,' but I could form no idea of what sort of proof that was. I thought a great many things were proved beyond a possibility of doubt without recourse to any such extraordinary process of reasoning as I understood 'demonstration' to be.

"I consulted all the dictionaries and books of reference I could find, but with no better results. You might as well have defined blue to a blind man. At last I said: 'Lincoln, you can never make a lawyer if you do not understand what demonstrate means'; and I left my situation in Springfield, went home to my father's house and stayed there till I could give any proposition in the six books of Euclid at sight. I then found out what 'demonstrate' means, and went back to my law studies."

There is probably no more illuminating anecdote than that concerning any of the great men in all history. It ought to be hung in good big letters on the wall of every study room and every court room, too. But observe what a tribute it offers to the value of the mathematical method of reasoning.

Lincoln's law books could not satisfy him as to the meaning of demonstration. Literary definitions of the word were too hazy and indefinite for his truth-seeking mind.

Only the rigid processes of the old Greek geometer seemed to him to meet the need of the reasoner who set out after demonstrated proof. And yet modern mathematicians find that Euclid himself has not approached as close to absolute demonstration in all his propositions as the spirit of mathematics demands!

But Lincoln found Euclid quite perfect enough for his purposes. The Euclidian method was incomparably superior to any that his law books and the rules of court practice taught him; and when he re-entered the legal arena, armed with the logic of Euclid, he was like Achilles on the field of Troy with weapons and armor forged in Vulcan's own smithy.

I do not know whether or not any considerable improvement could be made in prevailing methods of presenting elementary mathematics in school, and I am not specially concerned about that question.

But my correspondence continues to show me that there are many educated people who, somehow or other, failed to get in school what they should have got, and what they new regret that they did not get, in the way of mathematical training, and my special object is to convince them that in this as in other things it is never too late to learn. And often late learning is the most delightful, and the most truly instructive.

Once-Overs

ONCE COMPELLED TO FIGHT, DO IT WITH ALL YOUR MIGHT.

Do not fight unless compelled to; but once in it, fight with your might.

If you must fight, get in the first blow and put all you have into it.

A gentle tap carries no conviction, while a good, sound, straight from the shoulder jab carries a message which may save you from a thrashing.

Are you easily angered, and as easily get over your anger, in fact so easily that you lose all desire to fight, have no spirit left, at a time when you have roused the fighting spirit of another to its greatest exertion?

If you are this sort, you should know better than to engage in a physical struggle, in which you will not last long enough to win out.
